Everyone's Problem Good

by Chris Dean
TACTI sponsored the production of the play Emilia Galotti by Gotthold Ephraim Lessing last Saturday evening, and I, for one, was impressed. The only possible flaws were the length of the play (two and one-half hours) and the length of the intermission (twenty minutes).

Lessing’s play depicts the manipulation of men and women brought about by the abuse of power. It is a study in how this manipulation can destroy one’s humanity. George Washington, as the Prince, plays a man caught up in the conflict between his love for Rezia and the humanity rebellion against the machinations he must go through to have her. His conflict is with two ideals: “A prince has no friends, can have no enemies.” He says: “I would not lose his mind over certain things, but to love. This conflict with one’s humanity is central to the play."

Emilia Galotti takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a do not do rational, caring things to day.”

Several questions suggested that “safe-sex” education is a better solution and is already helping to slow the spread of AIDS, but Dr. Cameron denied this, stating that homosexuals are all dangerous and cannot control their actions.

In conclusion, he urged the members of the audience to return to the morality of previous years, such as the Bulgarians. “I would like to see a return to the censorship of those days,” he confided. “Nakedness is degrading us….nicely exposed or not will destroy us.” With a loud clinking of dropped beer bottles, the YAF crowd and their supporters went off to do his bidding.

The following is the author’s own reaction to the talk.

Even knowing the subject and sponsor, I expected more from this young girl with whom the Prince has fallen in love. To win her he entreats the aid of the Marquis of Mantua, played very well by George Williams. The Marquis proceeds from there to embroil himself in the plot by involving his suitor, well played by Taylor Lawrence, until they are all horridly denounced.

To further complicate matters, an old love of the Prince, the Countess Orestia, appears just at the most inappropriate moment. Despite all of these complications, the play has a good ending, reminding us there is quite a lot to be said for having humanity.

Astrid H. Howard gave a fine performance as the Countess. Also good were Bruce McLoughlin as D’Alessio to Galotti and Patricia Houseworth as Claudia Galotti.

I recommend this play. Despite the fact that it is long I would still make an effort to go to see it. It is well worth the time and the money spent.

Emilia Galotti will be presented in the provokable Louise Lounge, July, 7th, at 8 pm; tomorrow, the 8th, at 8 pm, and Sunday, the 9th, at 8 pm.

Carnival Prizes Announced

The Committee on Undergraduate Scholarships and Financial Aid has awarded 36 students Caltech and Carnival Prizes of $3,000 to $4,000. The awards are based solely on academic merit and outstanding research and are available each year to any freshmen, sophomores, and juniors enrolled at the Institute. This year’s competition was exceptionally keen; the Committee's goal was to identify and honor the "best and the brightest" among the Caltech undergraduates. This year's winners are particularly well known.

The following individuals have been awarded Prizes for the 1984-1985 academic year:

Betsy Arnold
John Becker
Margaret Carter
Arthur Dauv
William Evans
Hildegard Garrett
Adam Greenblatt
Everett Howe
Jung I'm
Richard Il Camin
Joseph Kovac
Santosh Krishnamurthy

by Peter Alfke
Sociologist Paul Cameron gave a talk Tuesday night in Baxter Lecture Hall under the title of "Homosexuality: Everybody's Problem."

Of the two hundred odd people in the Lecture Hall, the audience was comprised largely of heterosexuals. The hundred or so who crammed into the back rows were almost entirely supporters while the rest were interested students and members of the Caltech and LA gay communities.

Dr. Cameron, leader of the gay bashing group, the National Scientific Investigation of Sexuality, has participated in a number of studies on the effects of secondhand tobacco smoke, as well as helping to defeat AB1, a bill promoting discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, as well as a bill to destroy the right to sue of a gay who has been beaten. He opened the talk by telling the members of the audience (apparently excluding himself) that the signals of distress will be given in a relaxed sexual mood that has been conducted in America during the past thirty years. This experiment is a failure, he claimed, and its worst result is the current freedom and tolerance enjoyed by gays.

Dr. Cameron then delved into an account of the more unusual sexual practices performed by male homosexuals; this was greeted with raucous laughter from the audience. In another instance, an automobile knocked down a faculty member, unfortunately with no serious injury.

The revised rules for the Olive Walk are:

1) No traffic on and off the Olive Walk will be permitted except for the loading zones.
2) Vehicles not actively loading or unloading will be cited immediately.
3) Priced locks in the undergraduate houses will be able to obtain keys for the locks from the house presidents and the house RA’s. Other individuals may be given keys at the recommendation of the Master of Student Houses.

The administration and the IHC also agreed upon other ways to reduce the difficulties of the Olive Walk closure. The primary concern behind the decision was concern for the safety of the people who use the Olive Walk on a daily basis. In the last three weeks, there have been two near accidents in which cars narrowly missed causing serious injury to pedestrians. In one case, a young mother, with her infant child in a stroller, was almost struck by an automobile approaching from behind.

In another instance, an automobile knocked down a faculty member, unfortunately with no serious injury.

The drama takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a

Impressive were the flaws of the length of the play (two and one-half hours) and the length of the intermission (twenty minutes).

Lessing’s play depicts the manipulation of men and women brought about by the abuse of power. It is a study in how this manipulation can destroy one’s humanity. George Washington, as the Prince, plays a man caught up in the conflict between his love for Rezia and the humanity rebellion against the machinations he must go through to have her. His conflict is with two ideals: “A prince has no friends, can have no enemies.” He says: “I would not lose his mind over certain things, but to love. This conflict with one’s humanity is central to the play."

Emilia Galotti takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a

Impressive were the flaws of the length of the play (two and one-half hours) and the length of the intermission (twenty minutes).

Lessing’s play depicts the manipulation of men and women brought about by the abuse of power. It is a study in how this manipulation can destroy one’s humanity. George Washington, as the Prince, plays a man caught up in the conflict between his love for Rezia and the humanity rebellion against the machinations he must go through to have her. His conflict is with two ideals: “A prince has no friends, can have no enemies.” He says: “I would not lose his mind over certain things, but to love. This conflict with one’s humanity is central to the play."

Emilia Galotti takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a

Impressive were the flaws of the length of the play (two and one-half hours) and the length of the intermission (twenty minutes).

Lessing’s play depicts the manipulation of men and women brought about by the abuse of power. It is a study in how this manipulation can destroy one’s humanity. George Washington, as the Prince, plays a man caught up in the conflict between his love for Rezia and the humanity rebellion against the machinations he must go through to have her. His conflict is with two ideals: “A prince has no friends, can have no enemies.” He says: “I would not lose his mind over certain things, but to love. This conflict with one’s humanity is central to the play."

Emilia Galotti takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a

Impressive were the flaws of the length of the play (two and one-half hours) and the length of the intermission (twenty minutes).

Lessing’s play depicts the manipulation of men and women brought about by the abuse of power. It is a study in how this manipulation can destroy one’s humanity. George Washington, as the Prince, plays a man caught up in the conflict between his love for Rezia and the humanity rebellion against the machinations he must go through to have her. His conflict is with two ideals: “A prince has no friends, can have no enemies.” He says: “I would not lose his mind over certain things, but to love. This conflict with one’s humanity is central to the play."

Emilia Galotti takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a

Impressive were the flaws of the length of the play (two and one-half hours) and the length of the intermission (twenty minutes).

Lessing’s play depicts the manipulation of men and women brought about by the abuse of power. It is a study in how this manipulation can destroy one’s humanity. George Washington, as the Prince, plays a man caught up in the conflict between his love for Rezia and the humanity rebellion against the machinations he must go through to have her. His conflict is with two ideals: “A prince has no friends, can have no enemies.” He says: “I would not lose his mind over certain things, but to love. This conflict with one’s humanity is central to the play."

Emilia Galotti takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a

Impressive were the flaws of the length of the play (two and one-half hours) and the length of the intermission (twenty minutes).

Lessing’s play depicts the manipulation of men and women brought about by the abuse of power. It is a study in how this manipulation can destroy one’s humanity. George Washington, as the Prince, plays a man caught up in the conflict between his love for Rezia and the humanity rebellion against the machinations he must go through to have her. His conflict is with two ideals: “A prince has no friends, can have no enemies.” He says: “I would not lose his mind over certain things, but to love. This conflict with one’s humanity is central to the play."

Emilia Galotti takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a

Impressive were the flaws of the length of the play (two and one-half hours) and the length of the intermission (twenty minutes).

Lessing’s play depicts the manipulation of men and women brought about by the abuse of power. It is a study in how this manipulation can destroy one’s humanity. George Washington, as the Prince, plays a man caught up in the conflict between his love for Rezia and the humanity rebellion against the machinations he must go through to have her. His conflict is with two ideals: “A prince has no friends, can have no enemies.” He says: “I would not lose his mind over certain things, but to love. This conflict with one’s humanity is central to the play."

Emilia Galotti takes place in the eighteenth century in a small town in Italy. The title character, played by Heather B. Humphrey, is a
The Inside World

Fleming: One more year down the drain of life. We, at Fleming, would like to thank all the sentinels. Whoopee you make it out by next Friday and come back to get paid. We've got Mr. Brown, Mr. Butler, Mr. Ching, Miley, Mr. Ely, Steph, Mr. Flum, Chica-Baby, Usef, Loaf, Ms. Lu, Mr. Lodman (pay your bill), Mr. Martinez, Argen the Evil Dictator, Mr. Manon, Mr. Natter, Mr. Pic, Mr. Pets, Mr. Rich, Mr. Shah, Mr. Shannon, Mr. Tomlinson, Mr. Wong, Davey, Mr. Whitt, and Jumbo Wu. Also, good-by to Jeff Hayes and Matt Zell, we'll miss you.

Now for the big news, you've been following it all along, and now... Fleming Cloggery, our domicile of 29 years! This year we'd like to thank the other teams, the ret, the devoted fans and, of course, the team players.

Boom! Screen!

We would also like to give a special thanks to Tom Boney and Morgan Gopnik, our very, very special RA's, you'll always be welcome back, even with the little baby on the way.

Here it is, the last paragraph of the year: Matt and Adam offer cheesecake that gets split three ways, and Jeff doesn't approve of casual sex, but the big question: Glory-Ann, Keating, 3 A.M.?, a dive downtown, Eating Out!??

To the Editor:

The next true story, related to me directly by its instigator, was a bit too ridiculous to keep to myself. To quote extensively one Praveen Asthana, "I grew up and attended high school in Zamibia. It happened that I was in charge of a certain club when I was sixteen, and at one stage planned a field trip for the group. I received the proper authorization, and was given the keys to a school bus for the day before the trip.

"As I had never driven a bus, I took advantage of the situation and did so that afternoon. I drove to a friend's house and went in to visit. His father arrived subsequently; as we had a club meeting that day, he drove us back to get paid. We've got Mr. Brown, Mr. Butler, Mr. Ching, Miley, Mr. Ely, Steph, Mr. Flum, Chica-Baby, Usef, Loaf, Ms. Lu, Mr. Lodman (pay your bill), Mr. Martinez, Argen the Evil Dictator, Mr. Manon, Mr. Natter, Mr. Pic, Mr. Pets, Mr. Rich, Mr. Shah, Mr. Shannon, Mr. Tomlinson, Mr. Wong, Davey, Mr. Whitt, and Jumbo Wu. Also, good-by to Jeff Hayes and Matt Zell, we'll miss you.

"The next morning we arrived bright and early for our field trip. We waited outside the school to pick up the bus. The driver arrived, no key in the ignition although he had the keys to the bus. He drove to a friend's house and was never seen again. I found the keys to the bus in my backpack.

"As it was a warm day, I decided to bale out of the building. I drove to the police station, and they arrested me for the key (though I couldn't find the bus). It was at this point that I realized my joint of yesterday. I handled the situation calmly, and informed the driver that I had moved the bus for safekeeping. No charges were pressed.

"It is interesting to note that Praveen also loses cars."

J.P.

Ricketts: Ricketts House is a nice place to live, except that there was a bug in my room on Wednesday. I thought it escaped from the Hobbit. I have a poem about bugs.

Bugs are everywhere, everywhere.
They're creeping up the stairs.
They're crawling through your hair.
Bugs! America hates bugs!

Oh yeah, we had a Bad Taste Party last weekend. We painted the curtains green and served chez-whir, homemade cappuccino yogurt, and mushroom & battery pie. Peter-Pete came dressed as a giant female crab, complete with 4'et1V'QI ............

Good Luck On Finals, Everyone!

ATTENTION: AUCHUNG

To All RA's at Fall Interhouse: Meet at PE Pub Lounge Thursday at 8 PM for Pre-School (pre-college?) High Sierras Backpacking Trip.

Snacks: Popcorn, chili, fruit, games, pastries, chili, and more. And a Magician from 9 to 10 each night! Saturday and Sunday nights, June 8th and 9th. In Wmnn Lounge, from 8 PM to Midnight.

Upcoming

Trips to the Hollywood Bowl. Watch for flyers during the summer.

Pre-School (pre-college?) High Sierras Backpacking Trip. Sometime around the week of September 15th or 20th.

Base camp in King's Canyon National Park. Who knows where we'll end up.

All summer long — Rent camping equipment for laughingly cheap prices.

Sign up for rides to the Airport Bus during finals week. Reasonable hours only please.

And this may be your last chance (for a while, anyway) to get designer summer fashion wear at the Y. T-shirts and caps each only $10 cash or free with a $35 tax-deductible donation. Help support this year's fund drive!

Any questions, comments, or ideas? Stop by the Y or call 356-4163.

The Caltech Y Fly-by

DECOMPRESSION

Popcorn, chilli, movies, fruit, games, pastries, chilli, bagels, milk, hot cocoa, graffili, chilli, and more. And a Magician from 9 to 10 each night! Saturday and Sunday nights, June 8th and 9th. In Wmnn Lounge, from 8 PM to Midnight.

Thank You, Nancy

To the Editor:

We, the undersigned residents of the Villa Apartments, would like to take a moment to acknowledge and thank Nancy Carlson for all the many changes and improvements which have been made to our apartmament complex since she took over as Housing Director.

In particular, we would like to thank Caltech for the following:

First and foremost, the grass in the courtyard, the tree trimming, and other improvements to the landscaping.

The new screen doors. With the best of the summer approaching, we all appreciate this simple way of keeping our apartments cool and this is especially so for those of us with children who couldn't previously open our doors on a broiling hot day because we'd be forever chasing our toddlers as they try to explore the walkways and stairwells all by themselves. New carpeting in almost all the apartments.

New paint jobs for the doors, as well as some indoor repainting.

The new washing machines and dryers.

The new hot water heaters. This was especially welcomed by those of us who like to take showers midmorning, after a lot of hot water has already been used up.

We appreciate her interest in our safety, as evidenced by the new anti-skid marks on the stairs.

We have also noticed that there seems to be a positive response on the part of the maintenance people when problems need to be fixed.

We also send her efforts to maintain friendly relations between her, our office staff, and ourselves. Finally, although it is realiliy that rent increases are inevitable from time to time, we are grateful for Nancy Carlson's support for our request that the rent increases be delayed for a few more months, and we appreciate that Caltech chose to do so.

In all, we would like to say that the many improvements to our apartment complex have made it a much nicer place to live. We wish Nancy Carlson continuing success in her work as Housing Director.

Sincerely,

--Jorge & Tricia Mandler
Jeff & Shanna Barks
Paul & Karen Dunlap
About 40 other people with illegible signatures Gotcha! Good!

by John Fourkas

Gotcha!
Universal Pictures

Picture this: Jonathan Moore is an undergraduate at a well-known private university in Southern California. Yes, of course the university is full of pretty girls. And what does Jonathan want more than anything in the past year? To go to a "media event" with some friends at a place known as Preview House. It seems that some guy had given them free tickets while they were in line for a movie. The audience begins to expect a run-of-the-mill teen age sex movie, and then is suddenly thrown into an adventure movie. These low expectations may be part of a clever move. The audience is led to assume certain things about the movie, and then is suddenly thrown into an adventure movie. These low expectations may be part of a clever move.

If you have some free time, check it out—I doubt you'll regret it...
Social Notes

by Sam

The pictures here are from the Ath formal on May 24. The event was a success—lots of people showed up! Many thanks to those who helped out, especially Janice Sakai, Biff "Fumi-bears" Yamazaki, Lisa Henderson, Diana Foss, and Jens Alfke. Things would have been impossible without you!

The rest of the candid photos are on display in the Master's office. If you'd like copies of any of them, just make requests by name and photo number and leave them in the box provided there. You'll get them as fast as I can get them out.

Posed portraits are also in! Come pick yours up from Sam Wang in 134 Ruddock, x3691.

Stay tuned to this campus—coming up this fall are Sports Day, in October, and a big (but economical) seven-house blowout that will engulf the campus, also in October. Don't miss that party train...

Photos by Ed Koo
Safe Sex

by Josh Susser

A few years ago, a new disease came to the attention of the American public. Called Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, or AIDS, it posed a serious threat to many individuals. The disease affects mostly homosexual men, intravenous drug users, Haitians and hemophiliacs. Most Americans still believe that AIDS is limited to these high-risk groups, and that those who are not members of these groups need not worry about this disease. This is a terribly mistaken belief, and one that could be of great consequence.

By now, it is clear that AIDS is not a gay disease. There are quite a few cases of heterosexual AIDS and the number of cases is growing. The Centers for Disease Control report that, between September 1984 and April 1985, there was a nearly 200 percent increase in the number of cases of AIDS among individuals with no known high-risk group association. In equatorial Africa, where it originated, AIDS occurs in all parts of the population in equal percentages, and most of those with AIDS are heterosexual. In the future, we may expect a similar situation in the United States.

It may not be obvious that AIDS has spread to the general population, and many will argue that this is not so. But a significant number of heterosexuals do have AIDS, and are transmitting it through sexual contact. Conservative estimates claim that over a million people have been exposed to AIDS. This is a difficult claim to verify, as it can be two to five years before AIDS symptoms are manifest, and there is not yet a reliable clinical test for the presence of HTLV-3, the AIDS virus.

If it is not already so, it will soon be clear that AIDS is a serious problem for the population in general, and deserving of everyone's attention. There are a number of treatments available for AIDS victims, but there is not yet a cure or vaccine for AIDS, and there is none in sight. Some have suggested quarantining of AIDS victims as a possible means to control the disease. This is infensible, if only for the fact that most people with AIDS show no sign of infection, and aren't at risk for a number of years. At this point, education is the only means available to combat the spread of AIDS.

There have been a number of educational programs aimed at informing the homosexual community, and they have had a significant effect on the spread of AIDS. Since the start of these educational programs, the rate of incidence of AIDS among homosexuals has decreased from doubling every six months to doubling every eighteen months. Among intravenous drug users, for whom educational efforts have been limited, the rate of incidence of AIDS has remained unchanged.

The main thrust of these educational programs has been prevention. At present, the prevention is the only means we have to limit the spread of AIDS. And the only way to prevent AIDS is to teach people how to avoid AIDS. This education involves learning how AIDS is transmitted, what practices involve a high risk of contracting AIDS, and alternative practices to limit one's chance of infection. This sort of education is now what everyone in the nation needs.

According to a recent release from AIDS Project LA, the AIDS virus, HTLV-3, appears to be transmitted in the following ways:

1.) Direct, probably repeated, intimate sexual contact with any infected persons, who may or may not show symptoms at the time.
2.) Injection of blood from an infected person (as in sharing of unsterile hypodermic needles).
3.) Uncommonly, by blood transfusions or injections of clotting agents used by persons with hemophilia.

AIDS is apparently not transmitted through casual contact such as hugging, kissing, touching, etc.

There are a number of recommended guidelines for safe sexual activity that have been publicized as "Safe Sex." For anyone who plans on having any kind of non-marital sex life, Safe Sex means activities that reduce one's chance of contracting AIDS. One should use discretion in choosing sexual partners and practices. Drugs and excessive alcohol should be avoided, as they can affect one's judgement during sex. Most importantly, Don't Share Bodily Fluids. Safe Sex emphasizes activities like hugging, cuddling, kissing, fondling and mutual masturbation as safe, fun, erotic alternatives. For any sexual contact, shower both before and after, and have been clean part of the fun, too. For intercourse, use both a condom and a spermicidal foam as a lubricant, even if other forms of birth control are used. Avoid swallowing or ingesting semen. Avoid anal intercourse, or any activity that involves contact with feces. If anal intercourse is a necessity, use a spermicidal as a lubricant.

Safe Sex may seem an intimidating challenge, but it is well worth taking up. Consider that it is your life that you are risking.

If you want to learn more about AIDS or Safe Sex, you can contact an officer of CLAGS, or call other AIDS Project LA at 800-922-AIDS or the Gay and Lesbian Community Services Center at 213-464-7400.
Bestiality—Admit it Now

by Charres Barlett

To say that most Tochers are an irritated as a bug in a rug would almost certainly a mixed metaphor.
Yet I feel that it is appropriate to see it in a somewhat relative sense is it rather symptomatic of the subject that I had indeed planned introduce today. While this type pre-introduction is by no means as definitive and ultimate induction, it does suffice as a kind of informal prelude so to what will in truth be the introduction to the subject which I intend to insure upon.

Herein be it known that the motion of this essay is purely facial; the purpose at point is unjustifiable to expound, not to exclude or aggravate. Any atitude other than that of impartial position is favourably impolitic; au such, any accusations of this sort are unwarranted. The purpose of Ams Arone is certainly not the pro-mulation of sexual behavior, astant or otherwise.

As an example, there is the well-known story of the baseball team which broadcast trivia on the scoreboard. Indeed, this trivia was impartial. Yet the solution to these meaningless factual questions had the visiting teams so perplexed that they did not notice that the grass had been cut too short. This was indeed a cardinal sin and evidence of a grand conspiracy.

Of course, the topic at hand, by its very nature, has a long and capricious history. If one were to investigate the historical ramifications of this subject, he would indeed find data which appears intensely intriguing. It is a ubiquitous and diffuse topic, of which opinions have been as variegated as methodologies. This is reflected in many idiomatic expressions which have come to us from ancient times. For instance, they have such indicative phrases as “pet peev,” “horse throat,” “counting sheep,” “cowpoke,” “sheepish,” and “in a pig’s eye.”

With this historical perspective strongly in one’s grasp, we may proceed to ratiocinate this topic. It is possible that one may notice a kind of generalized antipathy towards bestiality. Indeed, he may have the public antagonism of animal lovers to overcome in many cases. This tendency is enhanced by the bad press given to bestiality by the media. Upon watching television, one is presented with only the more negative side of bestiality. They bear of sheep diseases, psychotic dogs, and wounds inflicted by sharp claws. The media feed the public an image of the bestialist stereotype, and we duly masticate
it. When the word “bestialist” arises in everyday conversation, one immediately conjures visions of grimy shepards with loving flocks. In truth, there is no stereotypical bestialist. There is a bestialist in every walk of life—vegetarians, dog catchers, animal husbandry, slaughterhouse personnel, cowboys, and shepherds to taxe a few.

In truth of fact, bestiality can be a pleasant and rewarding experience. It is a preferable environment in which one can interact with animals without undue concern.

The advantages are many-fold and plentiful. Animals can provide agreeable company, especially in the thwarting atmosphere of Tech.
They never complain, nor do they ask for undue time. Also, as they hear of sheep diseases, psychotic animal lovers will be able to live in harmony with the rest of the world, for they are much more alike than different. All of those il-literal people who won’t let animal lovers be what they are are no better than animals.

Questions or comments? Please call or write. There’s no telling who really wrote this column.
Turkey

(With apologies to Rudyard Kipling)

I went into the coffee house to get something to eat. When this undergraduate, he ups and asks, “What's those on your feet?” The fresh he all laugh, and giggle fit to die, and out into the street I go and to myself says I:

Oh, it's Turkey this and Turkey that and “Turkey, if you please.”

But it's “Thank you Mr. TA” when the F's turn into E's.

When the midterm's late and their work can't wait and they're begging on their knees.

Then it's “Thank you Mr. TA” when those F's turn into E's.

I went on down to housing to find a place to live; They had 50 places open but not a one to give.

I hear they're needed for the freshman class of 1993, But when it comes to charging fees they sure have room for me!

For it's Turkey this and Turkey that and “Turkey, get thee hence!”

But it's “Grad you are so special” when they're raising up our rent.

When the cash isn't flowing and the bills are a-growing and the semester's not even begun.

Then it's “Grad you are so special” while they're raising up our rent.

Yes, making fun of labcoats that are working while you sleep Is cheaper than those labcoats, and they're starvation cheap.

I Plan. Call (818) 880-4407/4561.

HELP WANTED— COMPUTER PROGRAMMER/PERMANENT, parttime. Looking for pro­ gramer in his/her junior or senior year with BASIC experience. Knowledge of PICK operating system would be a bonus, but not essential. Small company, in a pleasant work environment. If this sounds interesting and challenging to you, please reply to: S. Fisk, Box 5276, Sherman Oaks, CA 91413.

You're never too old to play at the L.A. Children's Museum. Become part of an exciting, self-fulfilling experience. Volunteer! For more information contact: Catherine Scott (213) 687-8801.

PROFESSIONAL PIANO INSTR. Specializing in Beginners BA-MusEd (818) 795-4796.

INSURANCE WARS! Will beat any price, or don't want your business! Sports cars, multikits, good driver discs. Request “Caltech Plan.” Call (818) 880-4407/4561.

Shabbat Celebration

Come enjoy a delicious potluck dinner, singing and a Shabbat service with Caltech and CSLA Hillel this Friday. July 6 at 6:45 pm in the Caltech Y Lounge (upstairs Winnett). Please bring a vegetarian or dairy dish if possible. Most important—Come! Bring a friend. Everyone is welcome. Questions? Contact Myra through the Y office, x6163.

Health Advocates

Applications are being accepted for the 1985-86 Health Advocate Program.

If you are interested in becoming a paraprofessional member of the Health Center team, trained in common health concerns, first aid, CPR, health education, and communications skills, and are willing to help your fellow student, apply now! The course is a three-term commitment (PA 50). Application forms are available at the Health Center.

Keep Millikian Open

Library attendants are needed Monday through Friday, 5 pm to midnight, and weekends 9 am to midnight, during the summer. To graduating seniors and Work Study preferred. Stimulating work and interesting working conditions. Apply at Reserve Desk first floor Millikan.

Millikan Calling

Please return all library books before you leave for the summer.

Summer Health

Young Health Center summer schedule.

Monday-Friday (except holidays): 8 am to 10 am By APPOINTMENT ONLY—physicals, prescription refills, immunizations; 10 am to 3 pm in Clinic. Allergy clinic and physician ap­pointments will be continued throughout the summer. For fur­ther information call the Health Center at x699.

More Art (Please)!

Next Tuesday, June 11th, at 8:00 pm, Baxter Art Gallery Director Jay Belloli will give a lecture on space photography and art. The lecture will be in Baxter Lecture Hall, and the gallery will be open afterwards.

Bye!

This is the last issue of The California Tech for this academic year. Publications will resume fall-term. The first issue of next year will come out on Thursday, September 15th.