Optional Dental Plan Coming to Institute; Local Dentists Available

by Steve Gómez

Starting first term next year (or third term this year if details are worked out soon enough), all Caltech undergraduate and graduate students will be eligible to sign up for the Safeguard Prepaid Dental Plan, an optional plan offered to Caltech students but is such a deal that those already insured should take advantage of it.

Cost is $68/year for a member and $160 to have a tooth removed later when it could have been done for $28 in school. If anyone has questions, they can contact, Steve Gómez at x3762. I will try to answer your questions on the matter. Since I am not always there, leave a message at the tone and I will get back to you. Ta Ta.

What Happened to Oingo Boingo

by Adam Slouch

"Why haven't we had the Oingo concert?" Since our entrance into the "back to school" (Oingo Boingo Concert) sweepstakes, it seems the whole campus is filled with questions. Perhaps this article can shed light on the situation.

Brian Daniels and I were told of this contest without many details. After many phonecalls, some to New York, I reached someone who knew what was going on. This was on a Tuesday.

She said that she would send out the official rules in the mail, but that we had to handwrite on an index card our name and school and get it validated at a Honda dealer and send it to New York to be received by Monday.

Brian and I went to the houses asking for monetary support for the cards and stamps as well as labor to fill out these cards. All the houses except Lloyd and Fleming refused money, saying that their houses were not enthusiastic. Lloyd and Fleming decided to go on, knowing that all the houses would gain if we won, even if they put no effort in.

We bought and filled out as many cards as we could afford to send to New York.

The next day - "there isn't much light on the situation." Since our entrance into the concert or not and whether or not she had the right to tell us what she did was irrelevant.

All that is mind, they still promised a concert and she was going to hold us to that promise.

The next day - "there isn't much light on the situation." Since our entrance into the concert or not and whether or not she had the right to tell us what she did was irrelevant.

At this point I went to our friendly Deans and we set up a meeting with the Institute lawyer.

The lawyer thought that the 20 tickets offered to us in compensation for the whole affair was ridiculous. How about 800 tickets for all the undergrads, maybe 1600 for the grad students as well, or maybe even 2000 to include some staff.

The CIT lawyer together with our public relations office (a direct line to the press) are going to try to convince Honda and whoever else that it is in their best interest to satisfy us.

As it stands now, a concert is impossible. A reasonable number of tickets to a show in L.A. will see.

Haymans of Flintridge Donate New Chair

[CN]: Caltech has received a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Hayman of Flintridge to establish the Dotty and Dick Hayman Professorship of Engineering.

Caltech President Marvin L. Goldberger said that one of Caltech's most eminent professors will be selected to hold the endowed chair. "Professors are among the most important gifts our friends can contribute, since they enable us to recognize outstanding faculty as well as providing vital endowment funds that strengthen Caltech's engineering program," he said. We are deeply grateful to Dick and Dotty Hayman for their foresight and generosity. "A gift of $1.5 million is needed to endow a professorship at Caltech. The Haymans' previous gifts to the Institute were the Richard L. and Dorothy M. Hayman Professorship in Chemical Engineering held by Frank E. Marble, and the Hayman Lounge in Caltech's Athenaeum, in memory of Mr. Hayman's brother, Earl S. Hayman, a 1924 Caltech graduate. The Haymans have also contributed generously to the Caltech Alumni Fund, The Caltech Associates, and the Summer Undergraduate Research Fellowship (SURF) program.

Hayman, who studied mechanical engineering at Caltech, worked at Lockheed from 1936 to 1945 before founding his own company, Haskel, Inc. (Burbank, California), which produces compressed air (and gas) driven pumps, and special purpose valves, and metal flange seals for general industry and defense. He is also chairman of Haskel Energy Systems, Ltd., in England, a foreign subsidiary of his company.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayman are active members of The Associates, a Caltech support group. They are contributing Life Members and members of the President's Circle. Mr. Hayman has just completed a two-year term as president of The Associates. He is also a member of the Caltech Alumni Association.

Thoughts About BOC

The editorship feels that with such a major controversy on hand, we too should make our own comment concerning the BOC.

As a part of the student government system, the BOC allows us as students to play a major role in our community. We govern ourselves and we interpret and suggest repercussions for our peers. The honor system and its enforcement by the BOC give us freedom and a maturity found on few campuses. However, we have not yet been experienced with the power and responsibility that goes with such a position. The Board of Control idea is ludicrous. Therefore, it must be construed that the recommendation was made not upon events which occurred in the past, but rather upon the BOC's estimation of what Chris might or might not do in the future. In effect, Chris Edgington is being sentenced for crimes not committed, for advantages not taken—he has been judged to go wrong in the future, an impossible valuation. This decision was not based upon a prior record, but rather the collective opinion of the BOC of Chris's character as a human being. I do not believe that this type of judgment belongs at Caltech or even within the confines of society. The BOC's action is reminiscent of McCartyism. Civil liberties are certainly being violated.

However, descriptive naming and angry yelling will not bring a resolution of positive value to this subject. It is time we take a serious look at the society we have created and work together to better it for all. I invite all who have constructive comments about this subject to express them to the community, especially those who have served or are presently serving.

Questioned

To the Editors:

Recent actions of the Board of Control (BOC) have led a number of students to question the board's integrity. The election of student representatives to the BOC has been delegated to the BOC, and whether such elections are justifiably just another job or a group of our peers who have been selected on the basis that they will respect and usually abide by the policy, the BOC's actions, if any, to the Dean of Students. The procedure and actions of the BOC was as follows:

To the Editors:

State department representative Mike Stafford talks here (the Tech, 2/22) about a “public relations” campaign, which sounds very precise, but completely obscures the basic facts—that the Reagan administration is trying to influence public opinion.

You must have read the New York Times copy that painted a picture of administration negotiations making great progress toward an arms control agreement. We were almost closer to an agreement than we had been two years ago. However, with arms control, you either have an agreement, or you don’t. Close cooperation and agreeing with your negotiating partner doesn’t mean you don’t need in arm’s treaties. And all Stafford’s talk is worthless if there is no treaty to back it up. What Stafford didn’t talk about is that his chief negotiator, Fred Nitze—has consistently opposed every arms control agreement. He may have changed his mind when Stafford and Nitze say they are “close,” why should we believe that? Where does it appear to cross the finish line?

Stafford claims that we are “close” to an agreement because the U.S.S.R. has dropped its demand that non-missile defensive delivery systems be included in the SALT I reduction envisioned in the SALT I agreement. How close is an agreement if the Soviets absolutely refuse to limit their intercontinental offensive delivery systems? Without agreement to limit Star Wars, is it useful to discuss reductions in the SALT I refers to limit Star Wars? Not close.

Stafford claims that the reason negotiations for a comprehensive test ban have halted is because the U.S.R. was not willing to discuss the status of the over the name of the negotiations. How close is a comprehensive test ban if it is Reagan administration policy that a verifiable test ban is not discussed? The Soviet’s position on a comprehensive test ban if the Reagan administration can agree to a 25% reduction in nuclear testing. It is true that the U.S. has already agreed to a 25% reduction, but the Soviet Union has not. It is not possible to negotiate an agreement that is verifiable if the Soviet Union does not agree to verify. If the U.S. were to make a comprehensive test ban a priority, would the Soviet Union agree to it? The answer is no.

The only reason for the name is that we know who has not returned the talk because respondents are asked the same questions. The only reason for the name is that we know who has not returned the poll and can try and track them down. When we get the poll, we can try and track them down and, in the end, it would be done in a professional way.

We proceed slowly down the well-maintained plascrete roadway, silently marveling at the incredible array of weapons of obscure purpose, and, above all, green-wherever we go.

The PFLP is perhaps the most radical terrorist group associated with the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). They have been involved in numerous acts of terrorism against civilians around the world, including the 1970 mid-air explosion of a Swiss jetliner that killed 47 passengers and crew members.

Dr. George Habbash, leader of the PFLP said, "There is a mini- Palestinian national position. This minimum is the rejection of any recognition of the Zionist entity and the support of the United Nations resolution on the continuation of any settle- ment based on the continued ex- istence of this foreign entity." Ms. Heil would be well advised to find out the facts before making a statement. The PFLP is proud to have been on record for over 20 years as an advocate for the establishment of a Palestinian state, which is consistent with the policies of the United Nations and the PLO.

To the Editors:

In her letter [California Tech, 2/27] attempting to portray the Sandinistas as the defenders of democracy in Central America, Ann Teresa Heil ignores the fact that many of the Left-backed groups she refers to as a side point that the Sandinistas have been involved in numerous acts of terrorism against civilians around the world, including the 1970 mid-air explosion of a Swiss jetliner that killed 47 passengers and crew members.

I noticed a very distinct similarity between the drawing by San- gho Biswal on the first page of the week’s “American Cup” feature and a drawing by Warren Miller on page 25 of the 19 January issue of The New Yorker. In fact, this seems to be a case of blatant plagiarism. We hope steps are taken to correct this problem.

On Sunday, the well-bred, God-awesome Fleming basketball team met the lane, luck-loved, Lloydies in a grudge match to set up this week's thrilling showdown with the Spuds. Especially impressive was Brian Cader's around-the-back, through-the-legs, still-in-the-round-dunk, double pump reverse slam, or maybe it was a leap, to and the victory.

Volleyball is going as expected, with the Big Red Machine counting on an inevitable first place finish.

Lloyd: Ya know, in days of old when a Techer got finished with his homework and found himself with time on his hands he might go to a movie with his or her partner or seek the opposite sex at another college, or perhaps do something worthy enough to be printed later in this fine novelette, Legends of Caltech. But sadly, these days are behind us. Now ya know what he does? That's right, heads straight for the Geekbox room and pummels up "Head."

It is this epidemic problem which has prompted us to follow the example of the American Lung Association's "National Smokeout Week" with our own "National Geek Week." We thus offer up this challenge to Techers everywhere: Just go from Sunday March 14 to Saturday March 20 without playing ONE SINGLE COMPUTER GAME. Come on, it won't be that hard. It's only a week. And as inspiration, Lloyd will serve as a "Model House" during the week.

To further promote National Geek Week we also suggest you leave the calculator watch in your room for this week, not ask ridiculous questions in class, not look like an idiot by taping your pink slips to the door, and if anyone out there (God help you) still has thicc glasses fixed with tape, get Contacts.

Well, you got the idea. Instead of wasting your life at Rogue, why not drop by the bar and try one of our Drinks of the Week, which this week is the AntiCrush. One part Vodka, one part Gin, and one part Creme de Cacao. Now that's more exciting than killing a Demon on level 42.

Remember...if you can do without it for a week, you can do it without forever.

Ruddock: Stardom went straight to Betsy's head (and Betsy went straight to Mike's head), so she thinks that she's too good to write the Inside World now. However, she still finds time to go past the pantry three or four times a week. Anyway, if you missed her performance as a showgirl in the play, just wait for the movie. Speaking of movies, I was impressed with the movie of the so-called Purple Date.

The Lloydies had a fun Friday of sitting on toilets without seats. But the question is, when is the last time your Lloydies does it take to shower one Big Red gig? The world may never know, because they couldn't. They dickmunchingly retaliated with an all expense paid trip to the Beach Cafe, Pismo, but why does it take three carloads of Lloydies to ocean one Red? The enraged new Lloydies with drubbing Lloyd House and supplying Fleming and Interhouse with new furniture to replace the furniture that was taken to the beach but they didn't want to, so we wasted them anyway. By the way, why you running away, Sabra?

I went to a Siamese cat show last weekend, and guess how many Reds I saw. Shall I name names? Of course! Let's see, there was Shag, Shag 2, Door, George, Pink Lloyd, and Nik "the Quick, but not with the Dick." By the way, Joe, did you get your little band of huge men to "help" you with the boats? I just wanted to say, I heard that Nik was bailied to San Diego.

On another note, Charles Tsai says, "I don't want to say anything bad about Thu because she'll get all her little friends to beat me up." But Charles, we wouldn't say that. And by the way, I don't want to say anything bad about Thu because she'll get all her little friends to beat me up too.

Quote of the week: Charles Tsai says, "I don't want to say anything bad about Thu because she'll get all her little friends to beat me up too." But Charles, we wouldn't say this. And by the way, I don't want to say anything bad about Thu because she'll get all her little friends to beat me up too.

Speaking of Eddie, he's the lead singer for the new group P.W.D. with their smash single "Tied Out and Touch Someone but Get the Warren and Eric "The Rod" Scharin, bassist and backup singer Ed "How Nice, Get Me in One," are the other group members who are trying to be the next Village People. They're working on a new hit song with the theme song for the new hit movie "Get The Receiver Out of Your Pants" with a soundtrack by "National Geographic's" own, "How Nice, Get Me in One." The song promises to be an all time classic, and we can't wait for the release.

On a more moderate level, congratulations to Ed Mao, the newest Red Aid Mate. Upcoming events: Fresh Party with Blacker and Fleming Saturday at 8:00 in the courtyard. Things to watch for. Can he keep his face to himself on the dance floor? Or will he Wayne or Hangie with a dance? Then it's softball with the Pirates bright and early Sunday morning, and Interhouse volleyball on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday. Also, look out for the soon-to-be-released swimsuit edition of the BFD.

Dambly Drool of the Week: Kent-Aid.

Sensible Wisdom Makes Good Quotes

by Huy Cao

_uncommon Sense: The World's First Compendium of Wisdom_

Joseph Telushkin

Shapolsky Publishers, 1987

Telushkin quotes Confucius: Someone accused going wrong and thus think: "If you were my wife, I'd drink it." Telushkin likes quotes that reveal irony. George Bernard Shaw says: "If I were God, I'd put my community under the care of the Soviet Union in 1931 said, "Tomorrow I leave this country of hope and return to our Western countries of despair." In 1939 Gandhi said, "I am as certain as I am dictating these lines that the strongest German heart will melt only if the Jews adopt active nonviolence." Harmful comments shockingly respond to the advances of love. I do not despise Hitler's responding to human suffering even though caused by him. In 1946 Gandhi said, "Hitler killed five million Jews. It is the greatest crime of our time. But the Jews should have offered themselves to the butcher's knife. They should have thrown themselves into the sea from cliffs, that would have been heroic." There's a wonderful irony to the fact that the weakness of the people will fail more easily a big lie to a small brain (if any) of what it is. It's apparent from reading the best Telushkin finds that uncommonly sensible picture of life. He says, "The philosopher is a man who is lost and reduced, but I hold, and which determined the contents of this book, the great feature worked out at 3AM with Dennis Prager." If only all of us could work out our philosophy of life at 3AM with Dennis Prager!

Some of the sayings are funny, some provocative, others are grave. But all are insightful, and that is why I strongly recommend Uncommon Sense. Actually, quotes are pretty good for what it is, a horror novel aimed at people that expect schlock. It reads well (if you don't ask too many questions about the motivation of the hero) and really would make a pretty good horror movie. By the end of the book, the alien entity is almost sympathetic. Maybe, if it weren't for all of those casualties he'd caused, and the long-range plans... no, I won't give those away, either. Suffice it to say that the goal of the alien is not just to eat his way through mankind.

Shapolsky is worth reading if you like horror movies or especially parapsychic SF. (You know, the kind those premies are "The bad news is—we are not alone in the universe." If you're more into MLF and E.T., you wouldn't like it.)

Horror In Space Better Suited For Cinema Than Foolscape

by Nick Smith

Shapolsky

Sensational Entertainment

by Richard Delap and Walt Lee

Chairback Paperback, $3.95

As some of you may know, California Tech (aka Caltech) is a known science fiction writers (Larry Niven, David Brin) and a fair number of lesser-known SF and horror authors who have decided to writing immediately, others who have finished their work. Walt Lee was an undergrad in the early 1990s, reportedly a Mole as well as in a women's studies class, and recently has turned his hand to writing. Co-author Rich Delap (previously known as a reviewer of SF entertainment) has thus a very gory piece of SF/horror called Shapolsky.

Shapolsky is not for the squeamish or susceptible. If it were made into a movie, it would be heavily R-rated for an of especially disgusting type. In fact, it reads as if it were made into a movie. Its very style is cinematic, complete with cuts and jumps, but the reader where the viewer is given no time to ask questions. This does not work so well in a book, since the reader has time to sit back and say, "Hey, wait a minute! That's not what something from the test of logic."

In any case, Shapolsky is about a very dangerous extraterrestrial entity that takes over and wrecks the space ship. He wants to settle down, raise a family, and take over the world. By that time, of course, everyone is too used to having access to the dominant characteristics of a Great White Shark and an American anthropologist. Of course, he does not have a wife, as we see for ourselves... ah, but that would be telling.

Dodd Science Pops Up Swimmers

by R. Brown

As the swimmers filed into the tiny classroom, one question burned in their tiny minds: How could they defend their third-place conference standing against Oxy? (Although the Beavers Beavers held a 3- season record and had already beaten Oxy once, they knew that Chris Oy had a reputation for always doing something to avoid the embarrassment of losing to Caltech again. Oxy had already swept Caltech in a 4-week stretch over Caltech, but Caltech had something better—science on their side. Better than that—Dodd science was on their side.

"Come on in here and put your thinking caps on," said Coach Dodd, sitting in front of a chalkboard.

"Coach, I knew you taught specialized math, but are you really qualified to teach science," asked a nameless freshman.

"Well, now," answered Dodd, "since my methods in nearly every subject are so different from the norm, I am, in fact, the only qualified person to teach these methods. I can teach each discipline except English. They took away my credentials on that one because my new syntax was just too radical.

The tired senior in the back row asked, "What are you teaching today?"

"I thought I'd begin our study of the thermodynamics Fluid Mechanics," began Dodd. "The theory states that if Caltech can find enough warm bodies to fill all the swimming events, it can beat Oxy at the SCIAC championships. However, there is a thermal limit, and that is that the warm bodies in the world won't help you beat Pomona or Claremont.

"Sounds great! Let's go do it... Swimming were halfway out the door.

Dodd stopped them. "There's only one problem," he said. "The Occidental swimmers have read my paper on this subject and will bring their own warm bodies. Which brings us to the newly-realized corollary, The Differential Heat-Flow Inequality!"

"That is my Christmas wisdom, my No-L message for you."
