Why, Y, Why??

by Sonny Arcilla

What would you do with $7,000?

This is the question the Caltech Y has been answering for the past six weeks by sponsoring various trips and events.

Under the leadership of Summer Y Director Julie Bolster and Y Executive Committee President Kate Loomis, the Y Excomm has been meeting every Thursday since the beginning of summer to gather ideas for activities and plan everything that must be done prior to an event from publicity to transportation.

Thus far, the Y has sponsored two parties and trips to Universal Studios, the Icehouse Comedy Club, the Rose Bowl for July 4th fireworks, horseback riding, the LA Museum of Natural History, a Dodger game, Les Miserables, and Disneyland. The Y is also co-sponsoring the Caltech student softball team along with the SURF office, which has purchased new gloves for the team.

Upcoming events will include the JPL beach trip this weekend ($2.00), a trip to Raging Waters (Aug. 5, $5.00!!!), the La Brea tar pits (Aug. 6, $TBA), a weekend in San Diego (Aug. 12-13, $25 for transportation and lodging), and a beach trip (Aug. 19, free).

Space for most events is limited and is given on a first come-first serve basis. Sign-up sheets are in the Y on the second floor of Winnett Center across from Chandler Dining Hall. Because of complications with cancellations and sign-ups, spaces can be reserved only by paying in advance when you sign up.

The Y is also selling movie tickets for $3.50 and tickets for various showings at the Hollywood Bowl for reduced prices. In addition, the Y shows movies on Wednesday nights at 7:30pm and 9:30pm at the Y for free.

Most of the events being sponsored are open to SURF and Caltech/JPL students and employees, with first priority given to SURF and Caltech students. Student SURFers and employees from other universities such as MIT are perfectly welcome at all Y events. SSSSP students, because of insurance problems, are limited to events such as softball and some parties. The Y is open from 10am-4pm on weekdays and the Summer Y Excomm meets at 5:30pm on Thursday evenings. All students are welcome to come to the meetings and bring their ideas about possible future events. You can also call Kate Loomis at 356-6236 or the Y at 356-6163.

In the history of fifteen-week late pictures, a new Editor becomes official by having his picture on the front page. The Editor and his brother are showing off their mountain climbing abilities.

SSSSP'ers Talk

by The Editors

It has been brought to our attention that some techers would like to know more about what the SSSSP'ers think about Tech and what they do here. So for those of you who want more hard news in the Tech, here are the unedited thoughts taken from a typical SSSSP'er.

Regarding the overall atmosphere at Caltech, Al says, "Caltech is a big-ass soap opera. Girls gossiping their heads off; guys trying to figure out what the fuck they giggle about. It's all the same-no matter where you go."

Just about everyone agrees that "The work is so goddamn tiring. Teachers assign work without explaining anything and students struggle to comprehend the crap they're supposed to learn."

Regarding the food service, Chuck thinks "That big guy is one of the most pathetic pieces of scum here at Caltech. he claims to have tasted pussy and says Chandler chicken tastes better. (How real can he be?)"

When asked how the summer program could be improved, "Better food. Class at a later time. Curfew recognized as obsolete."

Chris Gilbert wondered, "How could there be a lesbian society at Caltech when there's only one girl."

Dragon says, "Eh nep chan yup ooh a tee." On the entire program, Ben Wu comments, "Eh?"

When asked if he planned to apply to Caltech, Albert Tsang replied sarcastically, "I'll think about it..." but Chris Gilbert answered, "Definitely."

When asked about counselors stood out in their minds, X and Roast said, "This one counselor is the biggest fag I've ever seen; also his girlfriend belongs on a Kal-Kan commercial. If all girls looked like her, I'd be a Caltech fag also. One other counselor stood out too, Moses is awesome"

Regarding teachers, Ed and Chris weren't joshing when they said, "There is a teacher who is one of the biggest dicks at the Caltech Summer Program. We got so pissed off by his tardiness that we yelled into his classroom, 'Hey shit-for-brains let your fucking class out.'"

After looking through previous issues of the Tech, Dragon commented, "Mark Lytle, national journalist of the year? Somehow I don't believe that."

"I came here because the sky is blue."-Carlos Gallegos.

By the way, they are leaving August 11.

Proposition 103, Out of Control

by Chris Ho

You've seen the yellow posters around campus. You've heard about the controversy of Prop 103, the insurance reform law, in newspapers and magazines. And you've wanted lower auto liability insurance ever since you were able to drive. The questions are, "Who is on our side against the monolithic insurance industry?" and "can I do anything to fight back?" The answers are simple - "Voter Revolt" and "Absolutely."

Voter Revolt is a citizen based organization founded in 1986 by a group of experienced public interest advocates led by Harvey Rosenfield, with the help and support of consumer advocate Ralph Nader. In its first year, Voter Revolt achieved the most stunning political victory of 1988 and one of the biggest upsets in the history of American politics-the passage of the insurance reform initiative, Proposition 103, last fall. The insurance industry spend over $70 million against Voter Revolt's mere $2 million (raised from individual citizen donations averaging to only $20).

The "experts" said it could never be put on the ballot, yet Voter Revolt not only gathered the necessary hundreds of thousands of registered voters' signatures, but passed Prop 103 despite the huge forces against it! Recently, Voter Revolt won its third victory, with the State Supreme Court unanimously upholding Prop 103 as constitutional, much to the dismay of the insurance industry.

What exactly is Prop 103 all about? Among others, its main provisions include the elimination of "red-lining" (the determination of premiums based upon zip codes), an insurance commissioner elected by the voters rather than appointed by the governor, and most importantly, the rolling back of insurance rates to 20% below 1987 levels and the rebate of premiums paid over that level in the past year. These provisions apply not only to auto liability, but to other lines of insurance as well.

As noted Tuesday in the LA Times, over 400 companies have filed for exemption from the 20% rollback. This means they are trying to avoid lowering your rates, which translates to hundreds of dollars from your pockets. As consumers, however, we must prevent them from ripping us off again!

Voter Revolt has eleven offices statewide dedicated to the implementation of Prop 103, staffed by people from all over California. And now you can join the fight! Join the Pasadena office of Voter Revolt. You'll be working with a diverse combination of fellow workers, many from colleges from around the county. You'll make fast friends, earn rewarding wages, and be involved in the most exciting campaign in California in the past decade! And it all starts with a phone call!

For an interview or just for more information, call Voter Revolt at (818) 398-0395. The office is located just north of Caltech at 1290 N.Lake Ave., Suite 203. Or is you want to talk with an experienced staffer right here on campus, call Chris Ho at 584-9370 or mail a letter to me at Fleming House 1-57. We'll be happy to speak with you and get you involved!

And remember-without action, there can be no change. Voter Revolt is taking action, and with you on our side, we are making that change! And as we say, just do it! You'll be glad you did!

Outland

Cartoon Change Coming

by Scott Kister

Pulitzer Prize winning cartoonist Berke Breathed will soon stop writing Bloom County and start a new once-weekly comic strip, Outland. Since the quality of Bloom County has declined over the past year and since the once-weekly Outland strip costs the same as six editions of Bloom County, the Tech Editors have decided to print the popular strip Mother Goose and Grimm as a replacement.

Mother Goose and Grimm is a daily strip, yet still costs only $5 a week compared to $12 for Outland. A sample of each is strip is provided here for your reading pleasure.

Three great weeks of CRIME AND INCIDENT BEAT straight from the desk of Ginder.

Dear Chris and Mark
How's it going? FULL PULL, MAN!!!! Life has been hectic as shit. And shit is pretty hectic, let me tell you.

I am entered in a two-man volleyball tournament on this Saturday, so I have been practicing EVERY DAY for over two weeks. My partner and I are pretty good; we work well together. This tournament is big, 60-100 teams, $500 first prize and a trip to CA to see the national championships, and the Penthouse playmates will be there since it is sponsored by Penthouse. Maybe I will pick one up for you. Yeah, right!

Work at Bull Information Systems has been good. Don't worry, I am not going to become a CS major.

I guess you want to hear about the wedding. Shit, I have been gone from Caltech for a long time! Well, the wedding was great! Tons of people went (including some Techers, ugh!) and we all had a great time. The tuxes we had were awesome so all of the groomsmen looked slick, especially me. (I looked so good, I picked up on Laura's cousin, Heidi. No, Mark, I am not a USER!) Laura forgot her vows in the middle, but it was great because it lightened up the mood in the church.

Hey, since I have been home, I played Ironman Stewart twice. It is a lot easier here because I played one game in which I scored like 3 million, and I left because I had to go, not because I lost. I played Excitebike some, but it is hard to find around here. No one has any taste.

You guys have to go after Redlands this year; remember, they suck! Berg is awesome, but you just have to get on his shoulder, run up a hill, and then surge! If you are tired, surge! SURGE!

FULL PULL!

Well, I have been going to parties, dancing a clubs, getting into bars (no one is carding me!), and having a great time. I do miss you bums though.

One last thing: I can't believe Rich beat Joe Falcon. Flu or nothing, that is awesome! Well 1:50.8 is awesome! 3:45 is awesome! RICH is awesome!

Love,

John "RAGS"

Chris Is Pissed

I was sitting around thinking yesterday, and I just realized something that seemed totally bogus. Why does every grad student have an extension in his office, but the student houses have six pay phones and only one or two extensions located in the lounge.

It just sucks when you're sitting in an upper alley of Fleming or Ricketts and you want to call your friends. You have to walk down to the lounge, and usually end up waiting to use the phone. Why do the grad students have a ratio of at most 3 students to 1 phone, while undergrads have a ratio of at the lowest 40 students to 1 phone that you don't have to pay to use. It seems the excuse that is normally given to undergraduates when they ask for more extensions, is that the new Beckman building is taking up a ton of extensions and they can't afford to give out any. It seems obvious to me that they could just reduce the number of extensions they hand out to grad students, and give 2 to each house, or a total of 14. 14 more phones out of a total of 8000, I think that somehow they could find these phones somewhere.

I mean come on guys, can't you help us out a little?

Anyone wishing to submit a Chris Is Pissed send it to The California Tech 40-58 before the next issue, whenever that is.

THE CALTECH BOOKSTORE HAS THE NEW BOOKS YOU'RE LOOKING FOR!

Does God Play Dice? explains the astonishing new theories of systems that obey simple laws but which are neither constant nor predictable. Ian Stewart reveals a strange universe. A universe in which nothing may be as it seems, where familiar geometrical shapes such as circles and ellipses give way to infinitely complex structures known as 'fractals'. He explains how the fluttering of a butterfly's wing can change the weather and how the gravitational attraction of a creature in a distant galaxy can change the fate of the solar system.

Movie Beat With Varoujan

First off, this was not written by Varoujan Gorjian, it was written by the editors. Also, it was not meant to be a comprehensive review; it is a short guide to the movies that are out this summer.

If you haven't seen Batman yet, get with it. Most people on the west coast thought the team of Nicholson/Keaton created an excellent image of the Batman-Joker duality. However, John Raguin, our foreign correspondent, presented the east coast view: "I was a bit disappointed. I didn't think it was very good. The best part of the movie was the Joker dancing down the street to Prince's 'Trust.' Prince is awesome!!!"

Almost all of the sequels that came out this summer were generally thought to be worse than their predecessors, with only two exceptions.

Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade was almost universally touted as being almost, if not equally, as good as the original. Lots of action, and more humor than in the first one, make this a movie not to be missed.

Lethal Weapon 2 is actually better than the original. Mel Gibson's psychosis is actually believable this time, and the action is much more original.

Star Trek V received varied reviews, with some people loving it, and others hating it. It had a scanty plot and was slow moving, but if you love the characters, you'll like it.

Ghostbusters II was pretty much the first one, but worse. The only memorable part of the movie was the line, "one guess, all you can eat barbecue ribs night at the Sizzler."

The new James Bond film, Licence to Kill, was a departure from the usual style. A lot of people found this to be one of the worst Bond movies made. It should be called Timothy Dalton does his Rambo imitation.

Friday the 13th, Part VIII, Jason Takes Manhattan continues the series from the seventies, with Jason leaving the country for the glamour of the city. You know what they say, "if you can make it there, you can make it anywhere."

Tummy Trouble, starring the Toons from Who Framed Roger Rabbit?, is a short-feature before the unjustly maligned Honey, I Shrank The Kids. Unlike most films of this genre, Honey is actually a fairly enjoyable flick, and has become one of the biggest surprise hits of the summer.

If you enjoy seeing bad movies, a double feature that must not be missed is Roadhouse, starring a shirtless Patrick Swayze, and No Holds Barred, with a starring role for Hulk Hogan. If these movies were filmed by a good director, they would probably be mildly entertaining, but the scripts are dull and even the fight scenes aren't impressive. John Haba, a fan of Hulk Hogan's wrestling, attended the movie in expectation of a few cool wrestling moves, but none were to be found.

Although this movie was released a few weeks before the other summer hits, Dead Poets Society, has exhibited extraordinary staying power for a movie not largely based on action. If you previously have not liked Robin Williams, don't let that stop you from seeing this movie. Anyone tired of the worn-out action-adventure genre dominating most of this summer's movies, should see Dead Poets Society. Not only is it different, but it is a good movie as well.

Without a doubt, the best movie of the summer, from a cinematic point of view, is Spike Lee's joint Do the Right Thing. The exquisite camerawork, haunting message, and telling script combine to form an important film that no one should miss. Also, the Public Enemy single that booms throughout, "Fight the Power," will keep you rocking.

For those of you who don't frequent out much and would rather rent a movie for your VCR, the spring's hot movie, Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure, is coming out on videotape in early August.

Watson Fellowships

The Watson Foundation provides post-graduation fellowships of $13,000 ($18,000 for married students) for a year of independent study and travel. Fellowships are not intended to support formal studies at a foreign university. They encourage, instead, an informal break in the normal sequence of undergraduate/post-graduate education. Caltech seniors are usually chosen for this award. In fact, a 1989 graduate, Cameron Campbell, is a Watson Fellow this year.

One to three-page project proposal drafts are due in the Dean's Office on Friday, October 13th. Keep in mind that successful proposals generally have a single topic of study or investigation that reflects a students' long-standing interest in that area. Seniors should stop by the Dean's Office if they have any questions about this program.
