Dating and Friendship

by Steve Bard

This article is part two of two about the discussions that occurred at DAFT, that Dating and Friendship Thing. This week's article focusses on women's answers to questions from men concerning dating and friendship and a wrap-up of the entire discussion.

Now the women took the floor:

Q. What problems does the ratio give you? Response: It's neat at first. "When I first came here I'd never had so much male attention in my life." But the novelty of male attention quickly wears off. "It forces you to learn to be assertive in telling guys to go away." "You know what I really really hate? Guys follow you around and knock on your door and just barge in! I mean, I can't believe they don't realize they're supposed to be invited into a room before entering." [The woman who gave this response then acted out a scenario in which a member of the opposite sex would come up to her with an expression of wonder and disbelief on his face, reach out hesitatingly with an index finger, very gently touch her to establish her solidity, then exclaim "You're a girl! Wow...."]

Q. How does a person who has social skills [i.e. someone reasonable who you would probably like to get to know] approach you?

Response: This is a problem, because real men hate glomming and actively avoid a girl when she is being glommed, (which is most of the time, at least at first), so they effectively make themselves invisible. You just have to be social, act "normal" [as opposed to acting like we're the greatest thing since sliced bread and wanting to behold us (and slobber) as much as possible]. Approach like you want to be a friend. It's really unusual to be approached by someone who doesn't have ulterior motives and who simply wants to give because it makes them happy to give and to have a friend.

Q. Are certain guys "safe"?

Response: Yes. Some guys are obviously safe because they have a girlfriend, are "taken". Other guys just seem safe and I can't say why it seems so. Maybe they appear to fit the "older brother" type. But totally different guys can seem safe; sometimes it's the really confident types who you don't feel you have to worry about, can take care of themselves emotionally, but sometimes it's the shy types. It's hard to tell.

Q. Do men and women think the same? Response: NO!!!!!!

Q. How do you think we think?

Response: "Here's something I've never understood: How can you imagine that it could be effective [as a means of opening a relationship] to annoy a woman? I think you're crazy in thinking this, and yet it happens incessantly." "I think you think it's okay to be very direct, very blunt."

Q. How do you want me to tell you that I am/am not interested?

Response: Am: There didn't seem to be a coherent response to "am", though there was general agreement that it was mighty hard to do in words. Am not: Use courtesy, be gentle, do it well, be direct, no "not sure"s, don't leave the matter in doubt. [Say it plainly but not abruptly.]

Q. What turns you on/off?

Response: on: sincere and spontaneous compliments, showing that you think highly of me; making a sincere and adroit effort to be a good friend; off: glomming, general annoying behavior.

Q. How is touching interpreted?

Response: It has a great deal to do with how one was raised, what touching meant among one's family members; "For me, touching represents deep intimacy, something attained by very few. 99% of the time when I am touched, I resent it for overstepping the bounds of the level of intimacy I share with the person touching."; It is interpreted as the situation warrants—there's touching among friends, and there is sexual touching among people who are more intimate, and some of the kinds of touching actually overlap—there's a difference in being tickled by a friend and in being tickled by your boyfriend, but the actual touch may be indistinguishable from the outside.

Q. What characteristics do you want in a boyfriend? Response: [in addition to most, perhaps all (it was not clear) of the characteristics mentioned in the men's response to this question, suitably adjusted for gender]: "I must be able to respect him."; "Emotional support [in the abstract sense, as opposed to emotional support when a particular crisis comes up]"; "I want to be able to be silly, to do stupid things [not the usual connotation of stupid; more in the sense of not conforming to the usual rules of sobriety and propriety; things you definitely wouldn't do in front of your Great Aunt Madrigina because of the generation gap and her sense of propriety], like I do in my room when I'm alone and no one else is around, and have him accept me anyway, respect my enjoyment of acting this way, and maybe share in the silliness too."

Thus ended the formal questioning period. During the time remaining, we discussed differences in how men and women think: For instance, in dealing with frustration, one woman suggested that women deal with the crisis that caused the frustration, remaining outwardly relatively calm while dealing with it, and then when it is over, go cry to relieve the frustration, while men explode and get angry while dealing with the crisis, thus perhaps annoying the neighbors but relieving their tension immediately, and they don't cry. She suggested that while women do get very angry and express anger, it is likely to change quickly to tears, while men tend to relieve all of their frustrations as anger rather than crying as well.

Another topic which was discussed was the problem of remaining friends after one person has expressed interest in being more than friends and has been turned down, or whether it is reasonable to avoid clearly turning someone down if one is worried that the friendship might be destroyed. One woman expressed that "Infatuation goes away after a while, and then you can be friends." [Hence perhaps it can be a good idea not to turn someone down if they don't make it absolutely necessary for you to tell them one way or another; just wait, and if the friendship is worth something, the other

CRIME AND INCIDENT BEAT

2/26 Over the weekend the front tires and wheels were stolen from a student's car that was parked in the West Wilson lot.

2/27 The storage cages located in the old heating plant were vandalized. Someone climbed over the top of one cage and cut a hole in the other. The cages contain storage drums, diatomaceous earth, and other absorbants.

3/6 A Lloyd House student reported a suspicious person near the bike racks at Lloyd. The person was found to be a gardener recently appointed to the area.

Total value stolen or missing: $300

SEDS Conference

Dr. Mark Albrecht, Executive Director of the National Space Council, will kick off the CalSEDS 1991 conference by delivering an address "Rockets to Mars: Building a New American Launch Capability" at 8:00 PM, Friday evening, at Ramo Auditorium. His talk is being co-sponsored by the Planetary Society.

Following the keynote address, a reception will be held at the Winnett Student Center (all are invited). The conference which continues Saturday and Sunday at the Pasadena Holiday Inn is sponsored by the Caltech chapter of Students for the Exploration and Development of Space (SEDS), along with other California SEDS chapters. Transportation will be available - call to arrange.

On Saturday evening there will be a social/dance at Winnett with all conference registrants from colleges around LA (UCLA, USC, PCC, Occidental, Claremont Colleges, etc). Regular conference sessions will be from 10 AM to 5 PM on Saturday and Sunday at the Justines Room of the Pasadena Holiday Inn.

Other confirmed speakers are: Dr. David Webb, President, International Hypersonics Institute; Donald K. Slayton, former astronaut and President, Space Services Inc; Dr. Lou Friedman, Executive Director, the Planetary Society; Mr. James Burke, Space Studies Institute; Mr. Robert Staehe, President, World Space Foundation; Mr. Todd Hawley, CEO, International Space University; and many other leaders in the space community.

Many space organizations will have display tables at the conference. Many rare and collectible Space/Star Trek/etc paraphernalia will be sold at very low rates during the conference. This conference is a great opportunity to learn more about the government, industry, and non-profit space organizations and the space community as a whole. Having this knowledge will help you realize how you can and will contribute to humanity's migration into space.

Registration is $5 for Caltech students/SEDS members, and $25 for the Caltech/JPL community and the general public. The entire Caltech community is invited to attend. For more information write to SEDS, 112-58 Student Activities Center, Caltech, Pasadena, CA 91125 or call John Wright, (818) 351-9858, or Philip Rosenthal, (818) 577-4664.

Publication Nominations

Nominations are open for the offices of Tech Business Manager, little t editor, and little t business manager. A signup sheet which will be posted outside the MOSH's office until Tuesday, March 12. Interviews will be held at the March 12 ASCIT meeting at 10:30 PM in the MOSH's office.

Fascinating Info of the Y

If you miss this, you'd better be Deeead, or in Jaaaail!!! -Our fabulous, awesome, MAMMOTH ski trip (Sunday-Wednesday, March 24-27) is a Great Big Deal at only $199 for travel, lodging, food, and a three day ski pass - and if you're in jail, Break Out!!!

The Y now has tickets for Phantom of the Opera, (April 10 at 8:00 PM, $50.00 each)! Also, as just a sampling of our T-RRIFIC service-after-the-sale, I'm notifying all of you who bought tickets to the L.A. Phil. for Friday, April 12 that they have changed their performance time to 1:30 PM and the Sunday, April 14 performance has been changed to 7:00 PM. That's just one more reason why the Y is for You!!! So remember, if you bought your tickets anywhere else, you probably paid too much.

And, how about that 64 Billion Dollar Question question, "Global Security: Is the Mideast the Model?" Dr. Robert Bowman (a Caltech PhD) will be speaking in Baxter Lecture Hall on March 13 at 7:30 PM. Also, refreshments will be provided, March 15, at noon in Winnett Lounge, for a talk by USC professor Mark Klein, about the Growth and Development of Gangs in L.A.

person will eventually become a normal friend.]

The women pointed out that oftentimes a woman will, perhaps because she is brought up to be a care-giver, give emotional support to a man having a hard time. But then the man misinterprets that caring as meaning that she is interested in a relationship with him, and a rotten time is had by all. Hence she learns not to follow these instincts, but still feels bad at not being able [without getting burned] to express sympathy.

Some of the men discussed problems that the ratio makes for them, in particular the problem of not being able to treat women as they would like, not being able to assume friendship until proven otherwise, because the women learn to instantly put up their guard when a man tries to be friendly, as a result of having been glommed so much. [“I’ve been the recipient of some pretty bitter anger that was probably meant for the person before me.”]

The moderator wrapped things up by giving his two cents, after stoically remaining aloof (well mostly) during the whole evening [Matt, if I may paraphrase]: “There exist differences in perspective between the sexes. There are many reasons why it is cool to talk to girls, but an important one is that they think differently. Getting to know many girls as friends and as more than friends is vital, because they make one think in refreshing ways.”

This conference taught us a lot of things; it opened our eyes to some attitudes and feelings that we maybe didn’t know existed and gave us a chance to make more clear our gripes and hurts in dealing with the opposite sex. Yes, we have our difficulties in communication, and we have the additional problems that, coupled with our inexperience and naivete, the unbalanced ratio between the sexes brings. But one thing we of either sex can not deny having learned or relearned from our experiences in the last two weeks is that tried and true old saw, “Vive les differences!”

Lloyd1

Good morning and welcome to Lloyd House! Well, last weekend featured typical February weather, for New Jersey! However, the inclement weather (i.e. too rough for Mike or Aaron) didn't stop the Lloyd Midnight Football crew from having a cleat-burnin', grass-stompin', pigskin-bustin', nitro-burnin' game of football IN THE MUD!! Surprisingly no one was seriously injured, although more people caught colds than passes. The social team never ceases to amaze me with their creative ways... in which they can plan something that's really nothing. Last weekend, they subsidized tickets for the musical, Working. Man, it must have been tough writing down all those names on a piece of paper. O.K. it wasn't a bad idea, I suppose it's better than having Movie Night XXVIII, with the usual capacity crowd of 10 viewers. While your at it, why not subsidize the ASCIT movie instead? It would cost so much less, they could even buy food for everybody - now that's real excitement!

In Broomball action, the Frosh Committee of Fluids showed the Meat Council what really goes better on ice. Even though they didn't face each other in the tournament, a personal feud arose from the heated boasting and bragging. Do (FCOF) didn't know when to "zip it", so Steve (MC) proceeded to sling him over his shoulder like a sack of potatoes, and quickly one-manned him.

In Lloyd other sports news - the alley of Headquarters displayed its utter dominance in the limbo, crushing Vahalla. Craig "Crazy Legs" Smith, Alex "Leanin'" Lin, and Shiyin "Super Shin" Siou showed that, from the tall to the small, size was no obstacle for Headquarters. How low can they go? Is this the best alley challenge they could think of? Gee, what could possibly be more exciting, oh yeah, I forgot about that bocce thing.

If you walk into Lloyd, at any time in the evening, chances are you'll see people playing games. It started out as a "harmless" game of cards called Hearts, but then it got out of control. Now there's Scrabble (English and Espanol), Pictionary (rebus-style), Trivial Pursuit, Scattergories, Diplomacy, Operation, and lest we forget - Ready, Set, Spaghetti! Even the poker games are being dominated by variations like Peep Show, Hurricane, and Hollywood Squares! Who said that all Loydies do is study?

As for news & goings-on with the rest of the campus... Hey, what do you expect? This is an INSIDE world! If you don't like reading stuff about which you know nothing, go bug someone in your house to write an Inside World column, or write your own - that's what I did.

Candy Machine Canon to Consider: How can a Luv-ly fruit pie knock down that dangling bag of Cornnuts, but not even budge a hanging Milky Way bar?

The Inside World

Lloyd2

Not that we have an agenda or anything, but its about time the rug was shaken out in Lloyd House. The dust cleared out, or just another gripe session. Read on...

I got a useful and informative message from the Housing Office the other day reiterating the regulations regarding pets, particularly dogs. Huzzah. I can certainly understand the Housing office killing several forests of trees to send out a memorandum about dogs. I mean, the three dogs I see on campus are such a damned nuisance. God, and if they weren't on leashes, who knows what heinous offences they might be committing.

The real problem, though, as us self-appointed critics of Lloyd would point out is with cats. You know, those lovely, furry, critters that owe allegiance to nobody and just mooch off the Master's office and any poor unsuspecting animal lover that happens to trip over the obese anklebiters. The whole cat experience is what I'm describing here, the smell of cat shit in Page House, the unmistakable stench in Buttock House of cat piss and cat spray. I can't speak for all of the houses. I mean, I suppose come cats don't defecate and are otherwise sexless. I'm not that allergic to cat hair, but still. If we can't expect the cats to abide by the honor code and stay out of my room, then I simply can't welcome them in the student houses. They don't even make good coats, with the unhealthy table scraps we feed them.

Item two. Squirt guns. And I thought laser fag was bad. We've still got a few of those burned-out fad items in our tool room (hint to enterprising thieves). But this new craze, I don't know. It seems that L.A. will think up as many ways to waste water as there are dried-up boroughs in Northern California. I was accosted the other day by a couple of ringworm-infested lepers that took me for Super-Soaker Soldiers. Needless to say, I was insulted by the mistaken identity. Maybe these aquatic stormtroopers should realize their fantasies and join Hal Ginder's men in the security cadets. And the product line they have to choose from... Winkie-sized, Hubba-hubba sized and Oh-my-God sized.

Oh yeah. The sculpture. That thing in Millikan Pond. At least Blacker's whale worked, if only kind of. This thing is like a pale image of the whale itself, maybe the dried, bleached bones. We could have made a better one out of parts from C&H. I want to stalk out into the middle of Millikan Pond and urinate on it, but I have this latent fear that it might spring to life at a moment's notice and cut my RF'ing days short. I'm thinking of dropping old Stormin' Normann a line and telling him where that downed Apache ended up. It may never fly again. [Caution - constructive thought follows. Lawyers stand down.]

I was having this dream the other day, about sitting at the Red Door Cafe. It was Wednesday afternoon at oh, about four in the afternoon. I was having my usual, Hot and Cold, a glass of coffee and a glass of fruit juice. Sitting with me were some of my old Meat Council cronies. We were just chewing the fat, so to speak. Passing the time, conjecturing about how the Freshman Committee of Fluids might best serve the needs of the Meat council as we go on to graduate.

But, we started talking about the dizzying amount of discussion going on about Interhouse (Inter-what!?) and the various incarnation of the seven-house party theme. It was curious and sobering to note how Lloyd House was receiving these ideas, which is to say, apathetically, or not at all. Every time we turned around, a new house meeting was called or a new petition went up eliciting responses. Why was nothing happening? Was Interhouse a bad word?

Then a vision started to form... A party, or a party frame of mind... A concept bigger than any one house, bigger than all seven houses combined, bigger even than all of the seven houses, the Annex, and Marks and Braun too! No, not the concept of a seven house party. Didn't you read the previous paragraph.

No, but concept of an incentive, a controlling purpose. More than a theme. A theme is just a color scheme for party favors that get ripped up as soon as people start getting drunk. I'm talking about an incentive to PARTY.

WHY did people look forward to Interhouse? Simple. Because EVERYONE looked forward to Interhouse. Undergrads, Grads, High Schoolers, JCers, Pasadena Police, smut reporters, what have you. But the concept of Interhouse was a high one that transcended the seven houses. Alas, all of the urinals on campus could not contain the excitement therein, so the administration pulled the plug.

What kind of $$$incentive$$$ would it take to rekindle such childlike joy on campus? A single party? No. A joint party that off-campus people never find out about? No. Endless house meetings and dinner announcements? No. The return of alcohol to Caltech? Maybe. But anyways...

The vision that formed, weary reader, was that of a contest. A party contest. A party tournament if you will. Submitted for the campus approval, an inter-house party competition along the lines of interhouse sports, wherein each house gets a legitimate chance to seize the title of party champions of Caltech.

A year-long schedule of events would be drawn up, to indicate when each house has its chance to sway the opinions of the party-going judges. A strict set of guidelines would be drawn up, to be included in the little t for all to see, specifying what is a fair party method and what is not. An impartial set of observers would be designated, such as the IHC or the GSC, to mediate disputes over party semantics and to declare an overall winner.

The year-end winner would receive a tidy $$$um to help recoup the losses a house might incur when trying to sway the legally sanctioned opinions of the party judges. Oh yeah, and some sort of title, like Bitchinest House on Campus or something maybe more official.

An atmosphere would be created, an atmosphere of spirited competition, nay, a party atmosphere, in which the Caltech community and the Los Angeles community as a whole might be enlightened as to which house truly is the best, the most well-rounded... A spirit that would foster learning about people, about friendship, about humanity...

At that point I either got up to get more coffee, or I woke up from a sweat. The visions kind of blurred together.

Ruddock

Random Notes
 Alright, I get to do the Inside World again for Ruddock this week. Joy oh boy.

So anyways I was talking to my friend Scott Halliday the other day at APACHE and he said: "You know Jon, Caltech really sucks. If you have fun you fail. If you don't have fun you may just survive. It just sucks."

With the utmost of inebriated suicidal tendencies I said, "Yeah, you're right. Let me use this razor blade on my beret here—"

"Oh Jon, that would just fuck your GPA, now you wouldn't want that would you?"

All I wanted was a pepsi, a fuckin' pepsi.

I'm not the one who's crazy, INSTITUTIONALIZED, You're the one who's crazy, INSTITUTIONALIZED.

So last Friday Matt Tucker shows up after volleyball with a beer in his hand plastered off his rocker and starts screaming in my ear: "Jon man, what the fuck is it with people here? Why are they so fucking uptight? I mean, man they're just a bunch of fucking cutthroats!"

I look at this Hawaiian surfer friend of mine who happens to be a SOPHOMORE in AMa 95 and start laughing.

"Hey man it's not fuckin' funny man. I mean, I'm walkin' through Lloyd and say hello to his guy and he just says 'uhhhh.' What the fuck man. I say hello to people around this place and they're all like 'Fuck you asshole.' I mean like what a bunch of cocks man. Fuck! Fuck Caltech! Assholes, can't even be fucking friendly!"

Yeah, I suppose you might say they got a Roto-rooter shoved up their ass, sideways, on high speed, with hydrochloric acid, with Stalin for a plumber.

"And dammit, why isn't Fleming fucking awake!?"

Burning down the house.

At this point everybody's buddy Tracy Fu shows up with Jim Werner and a bunch of grad turkeys in tow, drunk off his ass as always. "Hey Tucker, hey Jon, so where's the rest of the house man? You're giving these grad-guys a bad impression."

"Fuckin' sorry man, here, have a beer," Tucker points his Cerveza at him.

So Tracy downs the rest of his beer, looks around. "Hey, where's Robert Lee?"

Stop. Character caricature description for those not in the know or fully aware.

Robert Lee—Male, Oriental, glasses (Surprise right? Really narrows him down right?) Believe it or not is over 6 ft. tall (Better?) Rudd. Aph. Mark Land's roommate (Mark WHO?). The craziest-assed subversive rebellious irreverent anti-establishment war-crazed lust-for-Stephanie-Seymour-filled drunken partied out over-sexed under-thrilled monstrosity of a Mongol that has ever visited this continent.

"Man, I'm on a mission from God. All APH's will get drunk," Tracy says.

The grad turkeys cheer.

"Fuckin' A," Tucker sez, fumbling with the twist-off on a bottle.

"Who said my name?" Robert Lee yells downstairs.

The APH guys cheer again, spilled beer all over the rug. "Look at him man," Jim points, "He's awesome."

"Dude, I get drunk twice a week but this outdoes me totally," Tracy stumbles down the stairs. "I mean, he's smiling ALL the time. He MUST be drunk. Only way his GPA's so high ... Dude, party animal man. It's the secret at Caltech. The more drunk you are, the higher your GPA." "Hey you motherfuckers!" Robert yells, "You wanna stay sober forever? Let's go count some Flems!"

"Fuck yeah!" Tucker jumps off 4.5, lands in a drunken heap in the Recycle Pit, runs off.

*Everybody come together,
 Come and hear that funky sound,
 Let the music move your body,
 Come and hear that funky sound.*

So I'm in this group of totally drunk rampaging guys running towards Fleming. Some grad guy points at the cannon and yells: "A dick is sometimes just another dick."

Pretend the Mission:Impossible theme's playing and bear with me.

Now we're in the Flem courtyard and all the lights are out.

"What the fuck man! WHAT THE FUCK!" Tucker's screaming. "FUCKIN' FLEMS, WHY AREN'T YOU GUYS FUCKIN' DRUNK! ASSHOLES! FUCKHEADS!"

"I say we wake them up and kick some ass and take some names. I came here to chew bubble gum and drink beer and kick ass and I am out of bubble gum and I am drunk," Robert says, the fire torching aflame in his eyes.

He swings his arm, leads his forces on, the great general marshalling his forces against the tide of sleeping sobriety. He tears through the alleys of Fleming, a whirling dervish of death and destruction and doom dancing with the devils of dread deconstructive darkness hell-for-leather bent on causing a red diaspora from the land of milk and honey. Doors flew, fire alarms rang, lights exploded in fragmentary shards of glass like shrapnel from a Claymore. Blood mixed with the red of the carpet. Flems, hapless victims to this Mongolian Terror, looked up with shocked abandon (except for the tall dude who yelled: "Hey! You can't do that! What are you doing?!?!"), then writhed as their limbs were ripped apart and their skulls burst in an origiastic shower of grisly gray and crimson red bathed in unholy light pouring from the sky. Robert Lee smiled his psychopathic smile, eyes alight in the fury of furies ablaze around him.

"Hey man, this is better than sex," Tracy smiles. "Trust me, I'm a Darb."

At this point Ben Macek woke up, looked out, and yelled something in French.

"Ben!"

"Jon!" He looks at me, M16 out. "So why you doin' this man? This is uncool."

"Aw they're just drunk."

He peers around, nods his head. "Oh, awright."

So security shows up, points at us, yells. "Hey! You can't do that! What are you doing?!?!"

They started talking to us. Tucker and the Grad Turkeys (sounds like some band) were playing it cool. Tracy and Jim were trying to carry on a normal conversation (Jim: "Man, I'm glad I'm a Flem, I can be a Jock and not even have to worry about being an artfag." Tracy: "Yeah, it's alright." Larry Cheng pops up: "Oh-oh." Jim: "Uh why, there's no artfags here are there?" Everybody sticks their finger in my face. Assholes.)

Everything was fine until Robert Lee flipped the security guards off and started screaming obscenities about their mothers. They started chasing him, but lost him somewhere in Noyes. Pasadena Police were notified, however, and they managed to get a chopper out. They finally found him in the parking lot behind Braun smashing windows with his HP and throwing expletives at the security office, daring them to get him. They finally dragged him away after he slugged several uniformed officers with his HP and poked several others with his Cross pen.

We live in peace, in peace,

We always live in peace

In peace in peace

Always always.

Later, in 4.5 Ruddock, Page boys in refuge all around. "So where'd this Robert Lee dude come from?" Tucker's asking.

"I don't know man," Tracy's laughing. "All I know is that he's out to top Valhalla."

Gasps from all the Rudd's. Shock. Disbelief. "No way," Delwyn shakes his head.

"I'm serious, man," Tracy says, "He stood up the other day in class and pointed at Valhalla and said 'Valhalla, you're a god. You're my idol. I want to be just like you.'"

Delwyn shakes his head sadly.

The Page guys look at us: "What the fuck?"

"Dude, Valhalla's an ex-Rudd," I point out. "Like in one of the Big T's in the Ruddock section they talk totally about the guy. He was like a total party animal as an undergrad. They say something like he ran through the alleys with a radio blasting 'The Ride' at full volume. He was like drunk all the time."

"He racked up the greatest number of offenses and got showered the greatest number of times of any Rudd in history," Delwyn adds.

"Dude, he's a total stud," Tracy nods.

"What about Koonin man? He's an ex-Page boy."

Groans, hands in the air, the Page guys throw their fingers.

Voices, I hear voices

Voices, I hear voices

Well, as Raichlen says once in a while: "Don't throw the baby out with the bathwater."

I need you to spin me round for just one frozen moment

I need you to spin me round so I can live in torment

I need you to really feel the twist of my back breaking

I need you to listen to the ecstasy I'm faking

I need you, you, you, you, you

Just to let the editors, administration, and those on campus know, I wrote this Inside World with the full permission of those written about herein, with the implicit knowledge of what I may have written, expressly and generally clear. To save administration the trouble, No the drunken people in here do not imply that I endorse or condone drinking in violation of DAPAC, No my remarks are not to be construed as malicious slander with intent to defame, No I do not intend to violate the Honor Code, and No I could honestly care less about free speech and editor's right to reveal their writers' names since after all this college (sic. undergraduate) institution is fully aware that Inside Worlds are not to be taken with any amount of sincerity, actual truth, grain of salt, or other acerbic substances which may indirectly cause people here to feel discomfited with my writing. The courtyard of Blacker is filled with wood, tools are scattered about, and paint brushes lie waiting to be used (which is not an unusual condition for Blacker to be in). But something's different. The piles of wood begin to take shape, murals appear on the walls, a net stretches across the courtyard filled with streamers and balloons, bands begin to play. What's happening? The seven-house party is, this Saturday!

The theme is Mardi Gras, so everyone is encouraged to wear a costume. Bands from several houses will be playing including Everyband, Hisboy Elroy, Firefly, and Brother O' Doom, and there'll be a DJ in between sets. There's going to be a casino in the dining room (prizes will be auctioned off at the end), food in Filipino, and dancing in the Blacker courtyard. It's going to be a lot of fun, so put aside homework for a few hours and go!

The decorating is going to take place Friday and Saturday afternoons. We need all the help we can get, so please come by Blacker and lend a hand. We also need people to help with security and the casino tables. If you're interested, contact the person in your house who's been coordinating this.

Remember. Saturday night, costumes, casino, food and drink, music, Mardi Gras. Bands start at 9. Be there.

WHEN?	SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 9:00AM.
WHERE?	SANTA FE DAM.
WHAT?	INDIVIDUAL TIME TRIAL. 5.5 MILES, FAST & FLAT.

Yes, it's time again for another JPL Time Trial. The third edition of the Santa Fe Dam Time Trial will be held Saturday, March 9, 1991. Like its predecessors, the 3rd edition will pit individual cyclists against the clock along the super-fast 5.5-mile Santa Fe Dam course. The third edition brings an expanded format to challenge both the competitive and recreational cyclist in a single event. Awards will be presented in two categories: Mortal and Lemond.

The Mortal category gives all riders an equal chance of winning. Each rider will be awarded a time bonus at the start of the ride, determined by subtracting the all-time course record from the rider's previous best time. The standing course record (set by Sugi Sorensen at the 2nd time trial) is 12 minutes, 48 seconds. Thus, all riders who have ridden the course before subtract 12:48 from their fastest time ever to determine their time bonus for the 3rd edition. New riders who have not ridden in previous JPL Time Trials do not get a time bonus this time around. This new format encourages improvement, not necessarily pure speed.

If your legs and ego compel you to more competitive endeavors, try for the Lemond category prize. The rule here is pure and simple: the fastest time wins.

Prizes will be awarded to the best rider in each category. The total prize purse has been doubled to a whopping $50. There is no entry fee and all members of the Caltech and JPL community are welcome to enter.

If you would like to compete or would like more info, please call Sugi Sorensen (x4-1013).

**The ride organizer and his family members are exempt from all prizes (until the Caltech Homeboy Blather which was rigged by its unscrupulous organizer).

Beaver Track

day for the sprints came in the 400 meter hurdles event.

For the men, Greg "Howdy" Dudey was the star performer, turning in a stellar 57.71 seconds time. The showstopper of the meet, for both men and women, had to be Emmeline Naranjo's 69.62 seconds time in the 400 meter hurdles. Emmeline's time was good for a first place, ahead of all the Oxy, Pomona, and Claremont girls (inspiring a standing, hollering, screaming cheer session by the Caltech fan section!)

The "Big Boys" of the Tech squad, the weightmen, were lead by Jeff Martin. The Fleming house sophomore was returning to competition to the first time since suffering a serious knee injury, and came back strong indeed with a throw of 106 feet, 9 inches in the discus and a throw of 144 feet, 3 inches in the javelin. Martin's teammate, William Glenn, threw an impressive 131 feet in the discus and a spectacular 40 feet, 6 3/4 inches in the shot put. The freshman thrower from Pittsburgh is shaping up to be one of the finest weightmen Tech has seen in a long time. The third member of the Tech weightmen trio (no, not Jim "Skinnyboy" O'Brien), Johnny Tsai, was out with a shoulder injury.

"Jack, you wuss!" was the cry of many a Caltech Beaver in response to Jack Prater's "strategic withdrawal" from the 800 meter event at the last minute. In spite of this less than courageous display, Jumpin' Jack was on perfect form in the triple jump with a jump of 41 feet, 6 inches. Kay Miyake pole vaulted over the bar at 11 feet, 6 inches. Teru, the other member of the Miyake Pole Vault Team, was unable to clear opening height. Teru was plagued with vaulting problems at the last Pomona meet as well. "I was doing a run up and I would have cleared the bar, but this *&%*$#ing bee landed on my face, and I was scared of getting stung, and it messed up my vault!"

So much for last week's meet. This week, come and watch Caltech Steeplechase Extravaganza One at the Caltech Track at 12:20 pm. The event, not for those with weak hearts, will be packed with hungry competitors. Don't miss it.

Phantom of the Opera

The Caltech Y has some great orchestra tickets for "Phantom of the Opera" Wednesday, April 10, at 8:00 pm. Michael Crawford stars as the Phantom in a show you will want to watch at least once if not again and again. The price is $50 per ticket (limit two please) available at the Caltech Y at 1:00 pm Friday, March 8 to students and 9:00 am Friday, March 15 to the Caltech community.

International Folkdancing

The International Folkdancers meet in Dabney Hall Lounge every Tuesday evening all year round. Folkdance classes start at 7:30 pm each Tuesday. Open dancing starts at 9:00 pm. On Tuesday, February 26th, Greek dance instructor Joe Graziosi will be teaching, so put that on your calendar now! No experience is necessary. All are invited to attend.

Come Fly With Us

The Caltech Flying Team is looking for students to compete in the Southwest Regional SAFECON Flying Competition in Pomona from March 22-24. This intercollegiate event will include both flying events for pilots and student pilots, as well as ground events for anyone who is interested in flying or learning how to fly. All Caltech students are welcome to join us for this weekend of flying. Contact Thomas, 320-47, x3740.

Let The Games Begin

Every Friday night, the Caltech Gamers meet to enjoy role-playing and board games. Friday meetings are in Winnett Clubroom 1 or in Rm. 33 of the SAC at 8:00 pm. Meet others who share your interests. All welcome! Most common Friday games are fantasy role-playing, but it's a good time to find players to share whatever games you like.

Don't Leave Home Without It

Travelling abroad? Don't leave without an International Student ID Card. You can obtain it from Ingrid, International Desk, Winnett Student Center, North Side, x6330.

Environmental Task Force

Caltech Environmental Task Force meeting Wednesday 13th March, Noon. Clubroom 1, Winnett. All welcome. Recycling - Volunteers needed. Can you spare one hour every three weeks to help keep the recycling program at Caltech functioning? Please contact David MacKay, mackay@hope, X2805.

Now you can afford to dream in color.

Apple introduces the Macintosh LC.

If you thought that finding a color Macintosh® system you could afford was just a dream, then the new, affordable Macintosh LC is a dream come true.

The Macintosh LC is rich in color. Unlike many computers that can display only 16 colors at once, the Macintosh LC expands your palette to 256 colors. It also comes with a microphone and new sound-input technology that lets you personalize your work by adding voice or other sounds.

Like every Macintosh computer, the LC is easy to set up and easy to master. And it runs thousands of available applications that all work in the same, consistent way—so once you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. The Macintosh LC even lets you share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to the versatile Apple® SuperDrive™, which can read from and write to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple II floppy disks.

Take a look at the Macintosh LC and see what it gives you. Then pinch yourself. It's better than a dream—it's a Macintosh.

Submit announcements for What Goes On on forms available outside the Tech office (SAC room 40A) and in the copy/mail room (SAC room 37), or use a plain piece of paper. Send announcements to 40-58, or put them in the IN box outside the Tech office. Indicate the date(s) the announcement must run. Announcements for the current issue must be received by 5 pm Tuesday and should be shorter than 75 words. Announcements will be published as space becomes available and will be chosen according to size and interest to the Caltech community. Announcements for commercial events unrelated to Caltech will not be published.

Caltech Ultimate

LAY OUT!! The Caltech Ultimate Machine is at long last forming with hopes of participating in Ultimate tournaments throughout the Southwest. We encourage all disc-hucking undergrads to come practice with us on the north athletic field Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4-6 pm. See ya there!!

Glee Club Performance

There are lots of reasons to attend tonight's performance by the Women's Glee Club. 1. The music, Pergolesi's "Stabat Mater", is beautiful! 2. It is International Women's Day and an appropriate way to help celebrate. 3. Your friends in the Women's Glee Club deserve your support. 4. There is free food courtesy of the Organization for Women at Caltech and Trader Joe's. The concert is in Dabney Lounge and will start at 8 pm. Tickets are $5 at the door and since the performance will be out around 9 there is still time to go out and party afterwards! Jean, Anna C. and G., Barbara C. and W., JoanMarie, Lindee, Carol, Anne, Yonchu, Jung-ah, Seong-Min, Sharon, Dagmar, Silvana, Sandee, Lada, Betty, Martha, Debi, Kyu and Sara will be looking for you.

Attention, Seniors!

The deadline for senior pictures is March 8th. The editors will try to give each person half a page, group pictures are fine. The editors are also looking for scenic and random pictures of our campus. If you want any of your work being seen in next year's yearbook, please submit your picture(s) and description(s), and your name and address to BigT office, 27-58.

Ride Board

Need a ride home after exams? Want to go to San Francisco for the weekend? Feel bad about driving alone? Want to save gas and help others as well? Now you can, with Caltech's new ride board, set up by the Caltech Environmental Task Force and the Caltech Y. Come by the Board, just outside the Y Office on the second floor of Winnett, and use the provided cards to offer a ride or look for a ride. Save money, hassle, time and gas! Reduce smog—use the ride board!

Folk Dancing On Campus

The Caltech Folk Dancers invite you to come and join us for folk dancing on Tuesday nights in Dabney Hall Lounge. Dances are taught from 7:30 pm to 9:00 pm, with dancing from 9:00 until 11:30 or midnight.

International Relations

Legacy Internationals is offering an exciting summer program for undergraduate, graduates and faculty to work with international youths (ages 15-18) and adults, helping people to cross cultural boundaries, gain skills, and explore the vision of global citizenship. The program dates are June 17-August 22, 1991. Graduate students and faculty usually qualify for Program, Counseling, and Administrative staff positions, while undergraduate students usually qualify for the unique Practicum in International Relations. Stop by the Y for more info.

Gangs in L.A.

Mack Klein, professor at the Social Science Research Institute at USC, is coming to Caltech Friday, March 15 at noon to Winnett Lounge. He is an expert on the structure and history of gangs and will discuss the development of gangs in L.A. Refreshments will be provided. Co-sponsored by the Caltech Y.

LA Phil Tickets

If you purchased tickets for Sunday, April 13 the performance time has been changed to 1:30 pm. Also, Friday, April 12th performance has been changed to 7:00 pm. Please note these changes and stop by the Y for other LA Phil performance dates.

Global Security

On Wednesday, March 13, 7:30 pm in Baxter Hall Dr. Robert Bowman will speak on "Global Security: Is the Mideast the Model?" Dr. Bowman received his Ph.D. from Caltech in Aeronautical Engineering and is founder and President of the Institute for Space and Securities Studies. This event is sponsored by the Y and the Pasadena United Nations Association. Admission is free.

Mammoth Ski Trip

Rain in L.A. means snow in Mammoth so grab your skis and come by the Caltech Y to sign up for a great spring break ski trip Sunday, March 24 - Wednesday, March 27. The cost is $199 which includes transportation, food, lodging, and a three day ski pass. For more info contact Taletha Derrington at 578-9504.

Women's Issues Discussion

Sunday, March 10, please join us for an informal discussion of women's issues as they pertain to education and student life at Tech. Discussion is to be moderated by a counselor not affiliated with Caltech or the Counseling Center. All undergrads, grads and faculty are welcome at 7:30 at the Master's House. For more information contact Jennifer Jungkuntz at 564-8545 or Yu-Chien Kuo at 578-9504.

Third Reich Film Series

Wings of Desire (West Germany/France, 1988 - Wim Wenders) will be shown Monday, March 11 at 7:30 pm in Baxter Lecture Hall. The winner for Best Director at the Cannes Film Festival in 1987 is as much a reexamination of the divided city of Berlin as it is a thoroughly romantic love story.

Science, Ethics and Public Policy

Professor Mary Jo Nye, from the Department of History of the University of Oklahoma, will be giving a seminar titled "Explanation and Representation in Science: How has Chemistry Differed from Physics?" The seminar will be on Friday, March 8 at 4:00 pm in the Judy Library in Baxter Hall. Refreshments will be served.

Science, Ethics and Public Policy

Professor Erwin Hiebert from the Department of History of Science at Harvard University will be giving a seminar titled "Lise Meitner and Her Scientific Circle" Wednesday, March 13 at 4 pm in the Judy Library, Baxter Hall.

Noon Concert

Enjoy a noon concert on Friday, March 8 in front of Winnett. To celebrate International Women's Day, the Organization for Women at Caltech and the Caltech Y are cosponsoring this noon time concert by the duo Second Wind. Second Wind performs a show consisting of their original tunes, dynamic and current songs, combined with their wacky wit. Bring your lunch and enjoy the show.

Montz Lets The Animal Out

by Chris Campo

"Brady, do you get nervous before your races?"

Montz: "Yes. If I stopped getting nervous I think I would stop running. Whenever I get on the line, I'm nervous, but I know that once the race starts, and I come out of the blocks, the Animal takes over. He lives inside me, and he runs the race for me. Its not me that comes screaming down the straightaway; it's the Animal."

The sophomore sprinter let the Animal out at the conference meet between Caltech, Occidental, Pomona, and Claremont last Saturday at Pomona. In the scuffle with the Big Three of SCIAC, Tech's men and women were squashed like an empty soda can by three buffaloes in heat. However, there were many personal records ("PR's") set by Caltech individuals at the meet and there were a number of impressive performances. And, despite the loss by Caltech to all three of the opposing teams, the team was still treated to pizza by Coach "Jolly" Jim O'Brien after the meet.

For the distance squad, Ned Bowden was the man of the day. Bowden hung on to a pack of fired up Oxy, Claremont, and Pomona powerhouses tenaciously in the 1500 meter run. The gutsy freshman runner faded slightly in the last 1 1/2 laps, but still finished in an inspired time of 4:15. Teammate Scott Kister was the other top distance performer of the day, running 10:58 in his 3000 meter steeplechase debut (despite hitting one of the hurdles and drawing blood!)

Brady Montz, or should we say the Animal, turned in one of Tech's top sprint performances of the day, a blazing 22.8 seconds in the 200 meters. The Animal was also a member of the 4 X 100 meter relay team, along with teammates Dave Park, Rob Whiteley, and Rich Baltzersen. The Animal-anchored relay came in with a time of 44.81 seconds.

Other impressive sprint performances were turned in by Kitt Hodsen in the 400 meters (68.94 seconds), Rich Baltzersen in the 400 meters (54.92 seconds), and Liz Warner in the 100 meters (13.4 seconds). But the highlight of the

Even though they did not have scientific bids in the early days of bridge, the rules of thumb developed in those days still guide us today.

For example, playing in our final match before we fly to Atlantic City, this hand came up. (I should be in the air on the way to New Jersey by the time you read this) Jeff's bidding was guided by Culbertson's Rule: Invite a slam (i.e. make a slam try) if a perfect minimum holding for partner will make it a laydown.

Jeff Rubens describes this as constructing a hand for partner which gives him the minimum valuation for his previous bidding, but with cards selected to fit perfectly with your hand. If you can construct one of these gives the partnership a laydown slam contract, make the slam try.

In this hand, Jeff used that rule to construct a hand for me: Qxxx, Axxxx, Axx, x, which would give us a laydown slam 90% of the time. With a little better hand, Axxx, Axxxx, Axx, x, a grand slam in diamonds would make. So Jeff bid 4 clubs. I did not sign off so Jeff used the rule again. Jeff can interpret my four heart bid to also show reasonable trumps, but that is only possible if I have the ace. In addition, he knows we do not have wasted values in clubs, because I would have signed off over the club cuebid if I held a club void.

So the play went club to the ace, ruff a club, heart to the king, ruff a club, ace of diamonds. Unfortunately, there is no way to check whether anything good is happening (like Qx of hearts dropping.) Hence, the slam depends on the spade guess (and avoiding a ruff.) Jeff led a spade to the king and ace and went down one.

This brings us to another rule of thumb, this one attributed to Marshall Miles. The Finesse Rule for Slams: In small-slam bidding, bid a slam which will at worst depend on a finesse; do not bid a slam which will at best depend on a finesse.

I hope next week's column has a happy ending.

JPL Cycling Club Time Trial

LeMond, Fignon, Delgado. Cycling legends. But that's not the end of the list. Pham, Hagen, Lin, Matzner, Zug. These are the names which will bring cycling into the 21st century. Will any of these hardened up and coming cycling heroes compete in the JPL Cycling Time Trial to be held tomorrow morning at 9 am?!?! You can join them, as the event is open to all members of the Caltech/JPL community and their friends.

The course is a flat, out and back 5.5 miler atop the picturesque Santa Fe Dam in nearby Irwindale. Anyone interested in riding in the Time Trial should contact Chris Campo at 449-4626 for more information. The ASCIT Van will be leaving from the corner of San Pasqual and Holliston at 7:45 am, and can be the method of transport for you and your bike! The JPL race organizer, Sugi Sorenson, promises a total prize purse of 50 dollars, so anyone with some spunk can come home with some booty for their efforts.

The time trial is a low-key, have fun event, and all are welcome to come and participate. The event is scheduled to begin at 9 am.

Bill Swanson, winner of the Ducey Award and named to second team all-SCIAC, was among the SCIAC leaders in points, rebounds and blocked shots this year.

Basketball Awards

Congratulations go out to Bill Swanson, who is this year's recipient of the Ted Ducey Award. The Ted Ducey Award is "an annual award to a senior player who best exemplifies the high ideals demonstrated by Coach Ted Ducey during his association with SCIAC basketball."

The recipient must qualify both as a player and a person according to the established criteria: ability, leadership, self-discipline, determination, sportsmanship, and academics. Bill is the first Caltech player in the history of Beaver basketball to receive this prestigious award.

Bill also was selected onto the Second Team All-Conference; this is the first time since 1970 that a Caltech basketball player was recognized as an All-Conference player.
