Welcome to Caltech

POWELL-BOOTH LABORATORY

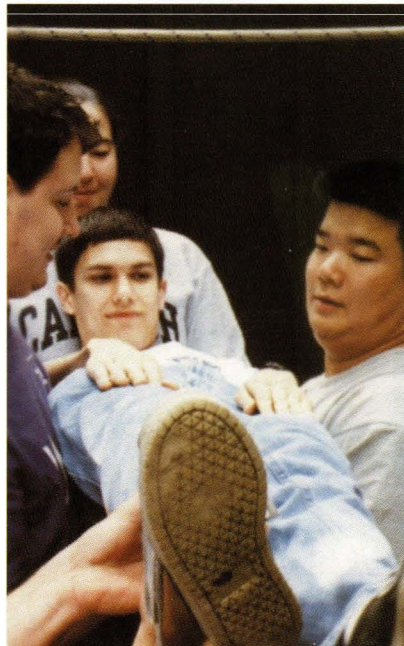

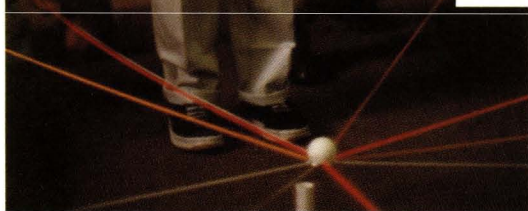

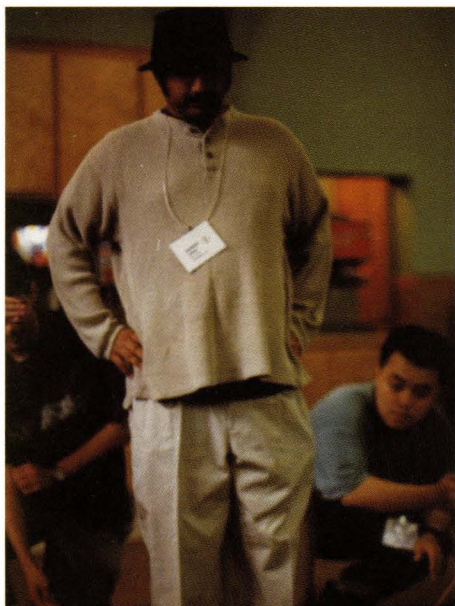

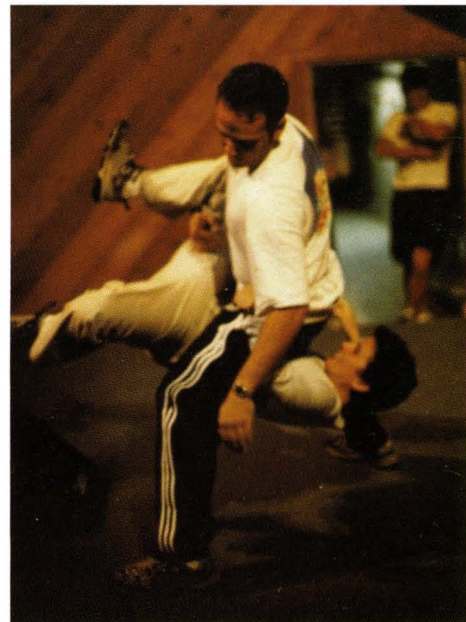

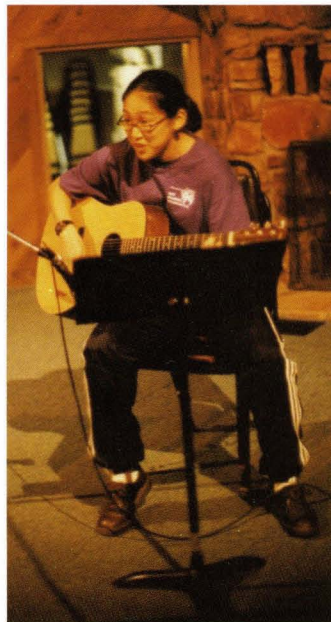

New Buildings, New People.

Caltech is experiencing a period of growth, and the recent construction trend continued. In preparation for the Broad Center for Biological Sciences, the shiny new South Holliston Parking Structure (bottom) was built to increase parking space on the west side of campus.

The Administration started migrating closer to the student houses. Keck Graduate Housing was renovated into the Center for Student Services, housing the Y, Minority Student Affairs, Career Center and the Women's Center.

Frosh Camp was held at Pine Summit Camp. The traditional boat race took advantage of the pool, and no fatalities were recorded.

ASCIT Carnival

The ASCIT Carnival was a huge success this year, enticing prefrosh to Caltech, dunking professors and TAs, and bringing a bouncy castle to the Atheneum lawn

To Right: Semana Latina brings a taste of Brazilian culture to the Olive Walk.

Zewail wins Nobel

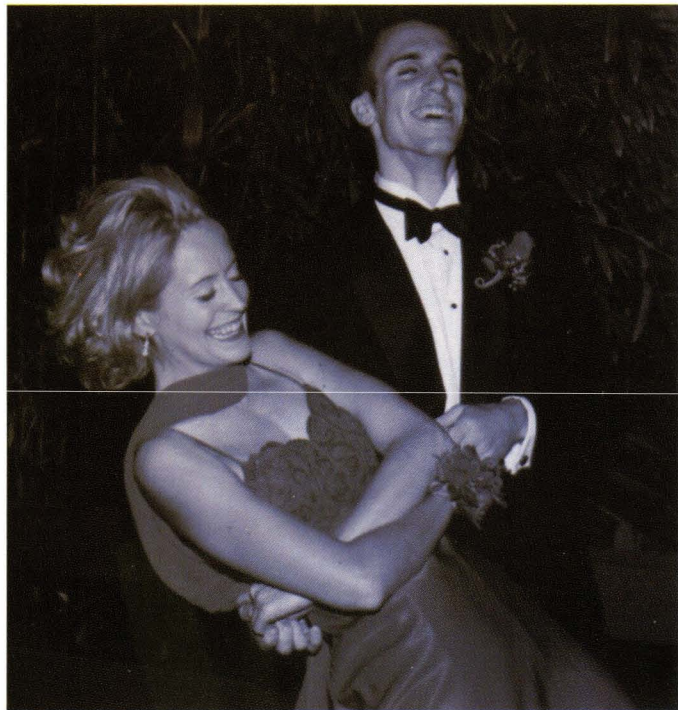

Dr. Ahmed Zewail received the 1999 Nobel Prize in Chemistry. The Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences cited Zewail “for his studies of the transition states of chemical reactions using femtosecond spectroscopy.” Using laser-based instrumentation, Zewail and his group have been able to observe the progress of chemical reactions as they occur. Time resolution for this technique has been improved to reach the limits of quantum uncertainty, allowing reaction intermediates and transition states to be well-defined. In addition to refining our general understanding of chemistry, this work will ultimately yield more precisely tailored medicines and other products.

Clinton Speaks

President Bill Clinton spoke on January 21st, 2000, before a packed crowd in Beckman Auditorium. He delivered a proposal for increased federal funding of basic research in the 2001 budget.

Beckman Celebrates 100

Dr. Arnold Beckman, Caltech alumnus and preeminent benefactor, was honored with a fete in celebration of his 100th birthday. Born on April 10th, 1900 in Cullom, Illinois, Beckman came to Caltech as a graduate student in 1924. He was hired as a professor in the 1920's and 30's and, more recently, served as Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

blacker hobse

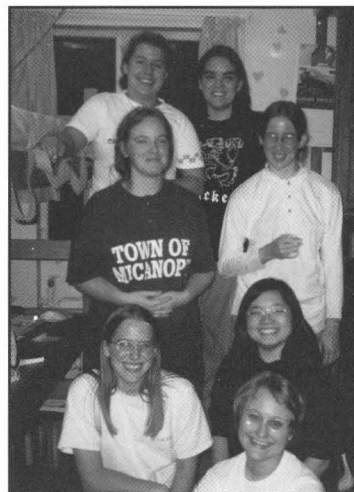

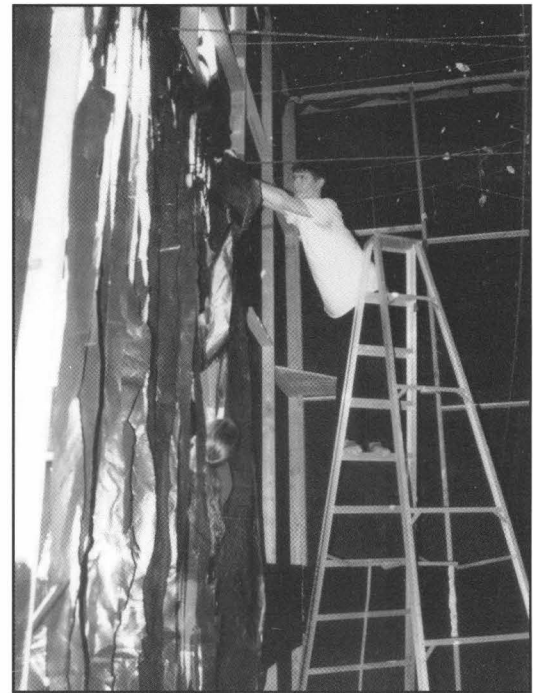

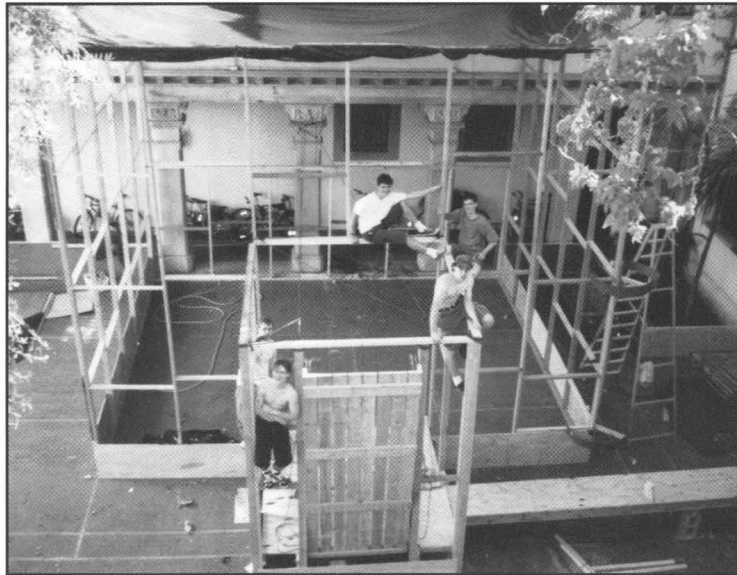

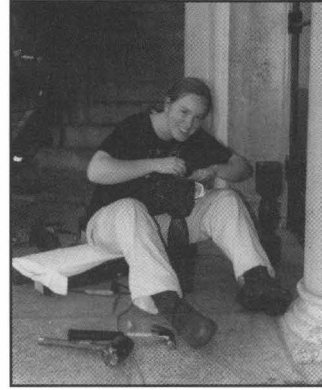

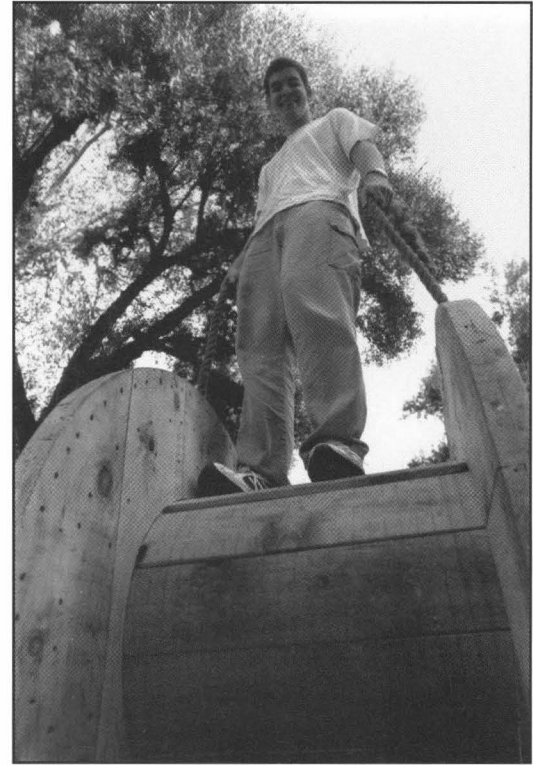

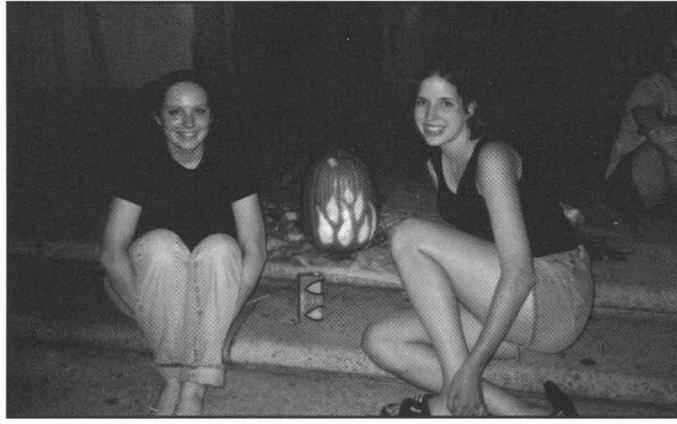

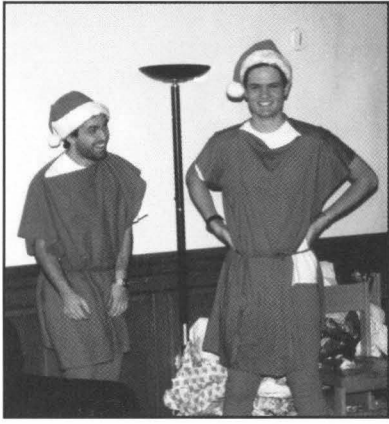

Thanks to the efforts of Clifford Hicks and the generosity of Student Affairs, the Housing Office, and a number of alumni, Blacker's tapestry was restored by Norbert's Rug Gallery and Antiques and returned to the dining hall during third term. It was manufactured in the Dernier workshop in the city of Aubusson, France, circa 1750.

Lloyd House

A Story.

Lloyd House was a nice boy who got into a good school that was really really hard. He saw many new things at school.

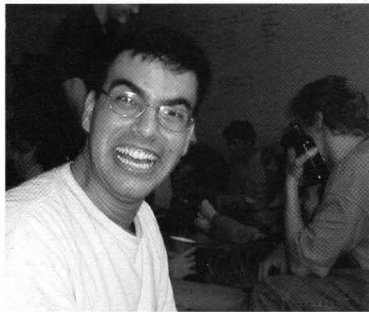

At first, he thought he couldn't do anything but work, because it was so hard. But then he realized he was on pass/fail and started to learn, for the first time, some really useful stuff.

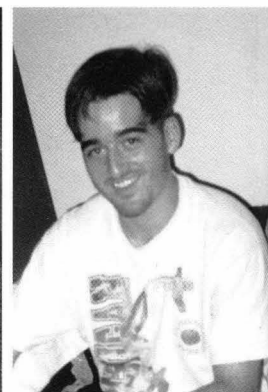

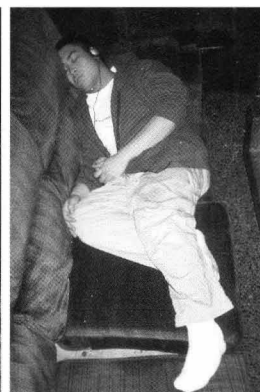

Lloyd started to get to know people first term. Some people were nice and some people were scary, and some people didn't come on campus much. But he got to see many strange people doing many strange things, and wondered what strange things would happen to him while he was at school.

After a while watching people and seeing what they did, he decided he was ready to really be himself: In short, he decided it was time to get personal style...

Lloyd House tried to fit in with each class. He hadn't yet bought a swimsuit, so he couldn't join the frosh at the beach. He was afraid of water, so he couldn't dive in with the sophomores. The juniors were way too ghetto for him, and he didn't have enough rejection letters to fit in with the seniors.

As Lloyd House continued seeking his personal style, he learned something new about himself... he didn't look so hot in a dress.

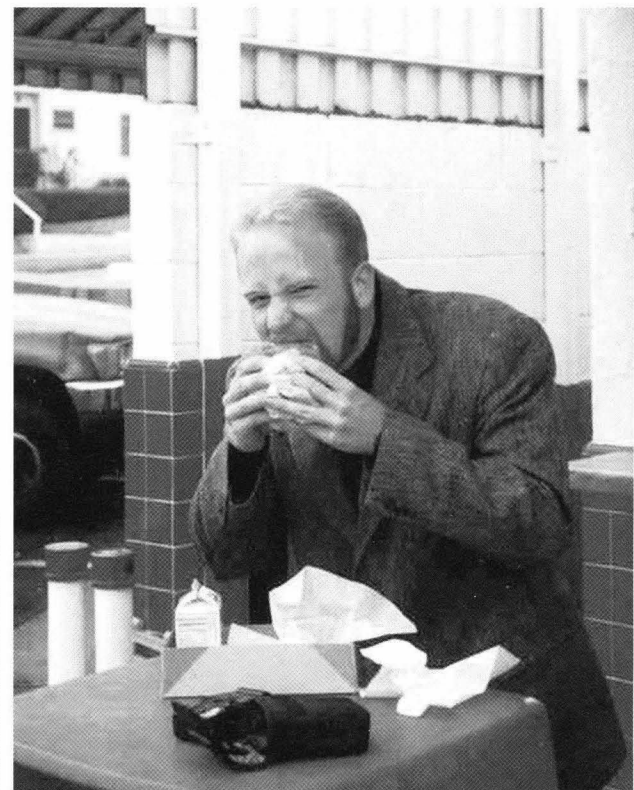

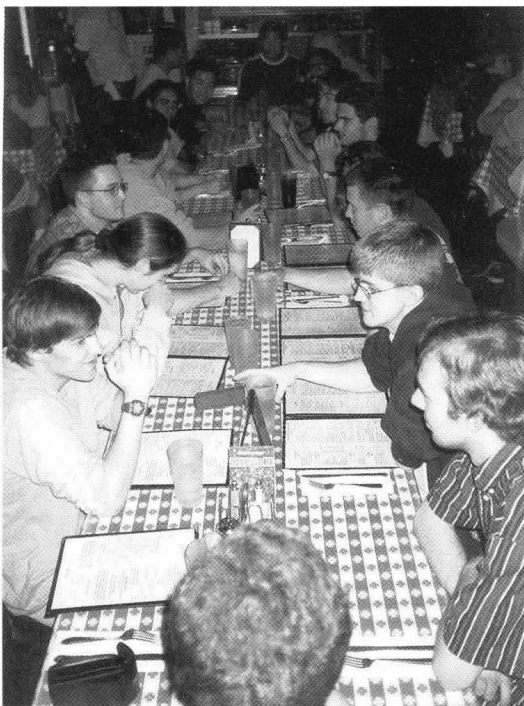

But Lloyd still got decked out in his formals for casino night, and he played craps and blackjack until midnight, when he used his winnings to bid on a super soaker, a bean bag chair, and a jug of happy horny wine.

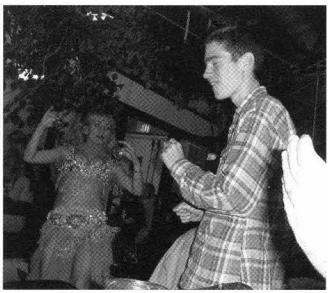

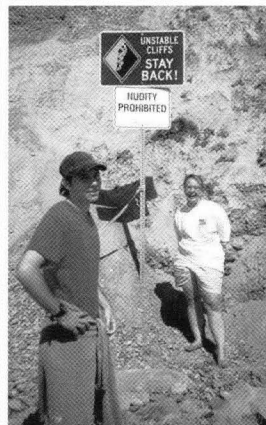

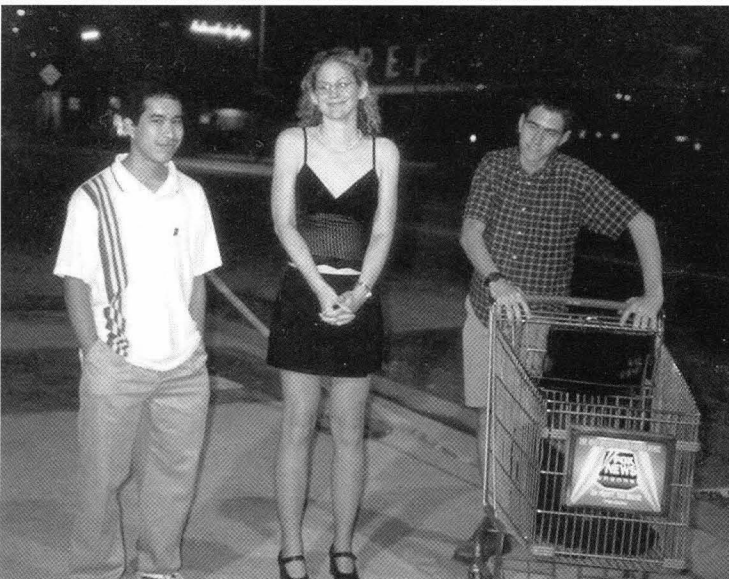

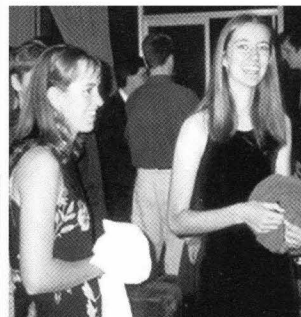

Lloyd House enjoyed craps so much that he decided to drive to Vegas one night at midnight. He stayed in Vegas all day, enjoying himself in the casinos and at the Star Trek experience. Hey, he is a Techer after all. So he gambled and enjoyed the fine dining Las Vegas has to offer.

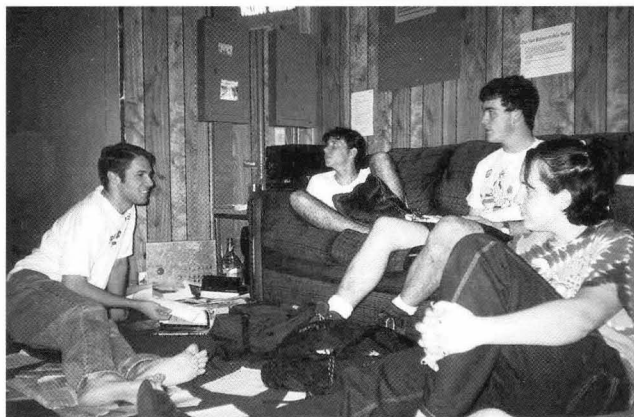

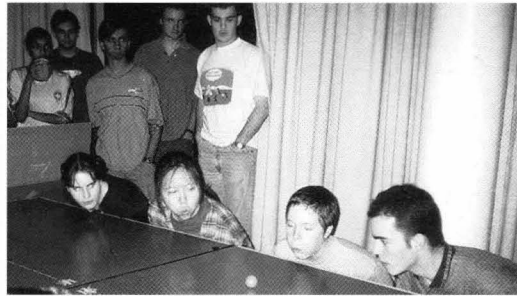

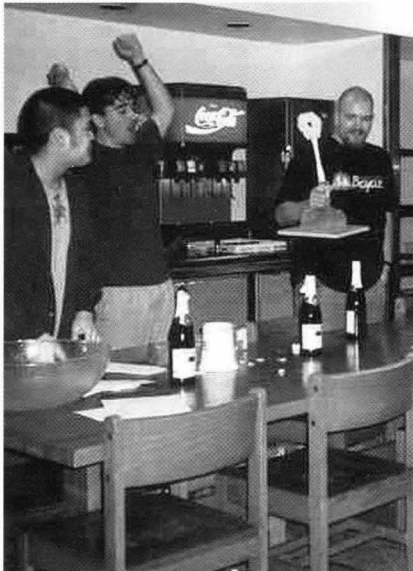

Namely the all-you-can-eat buffets for five dollars. So after gorging himself at Excalibur, he took a ride in a four passenger jet for an aerial view of the city, and managed to lose his lunch from the pilot's bumpy landing.

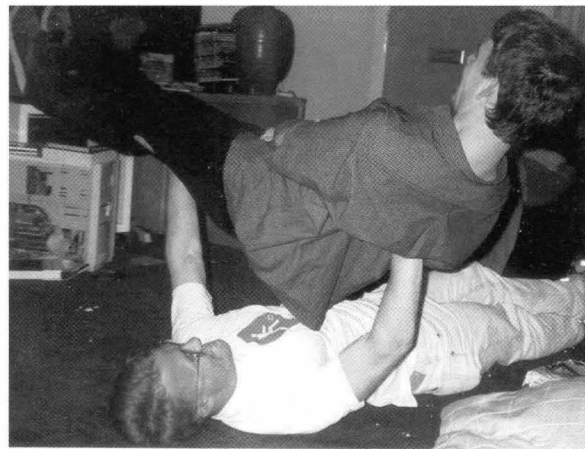

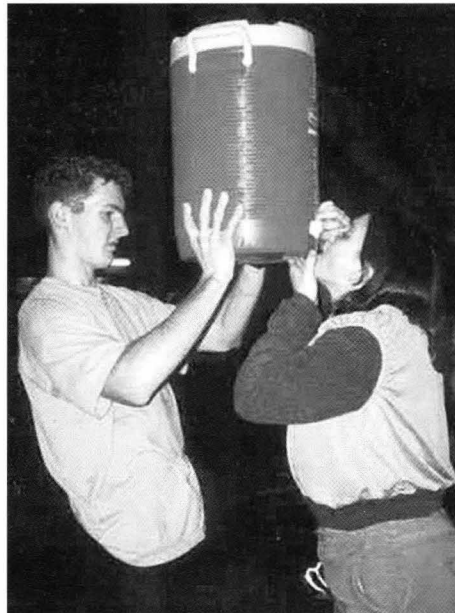

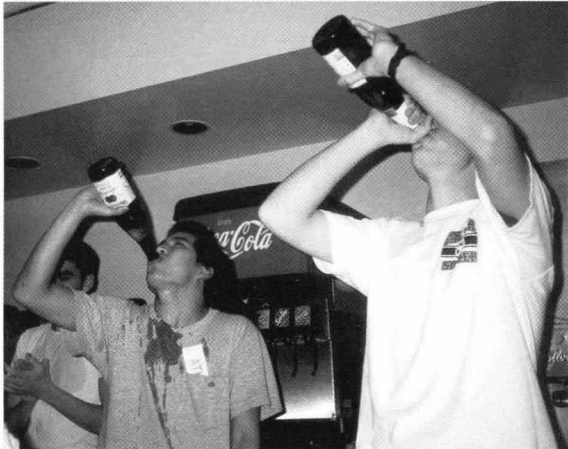

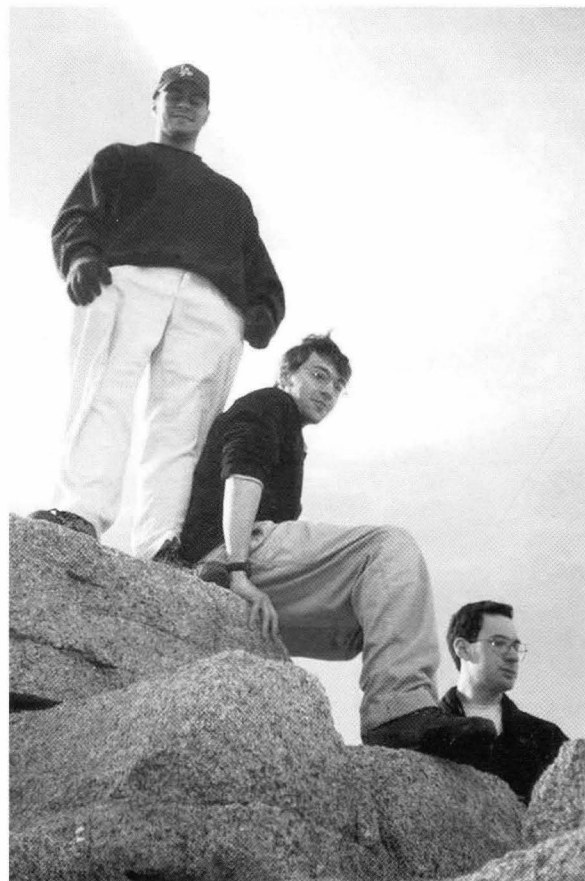

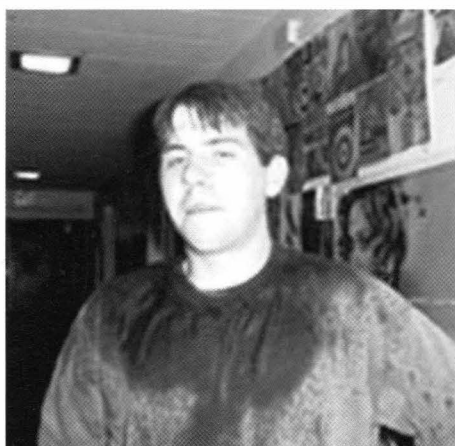

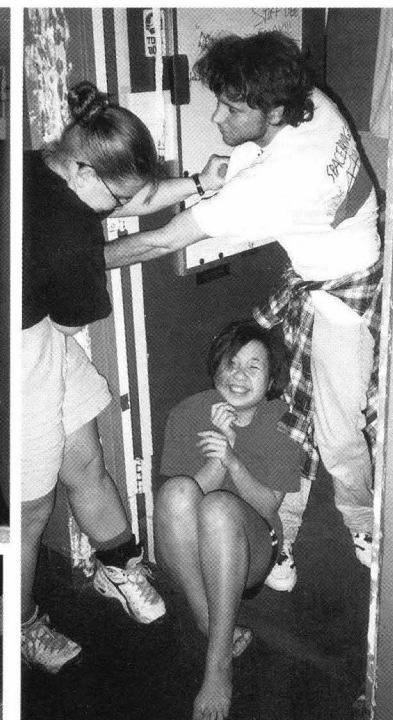

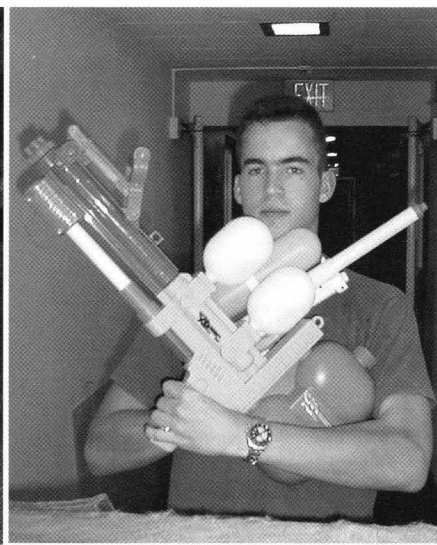

Lloyd House especially enjoyed seeing the belly dancer at Burger Continental.

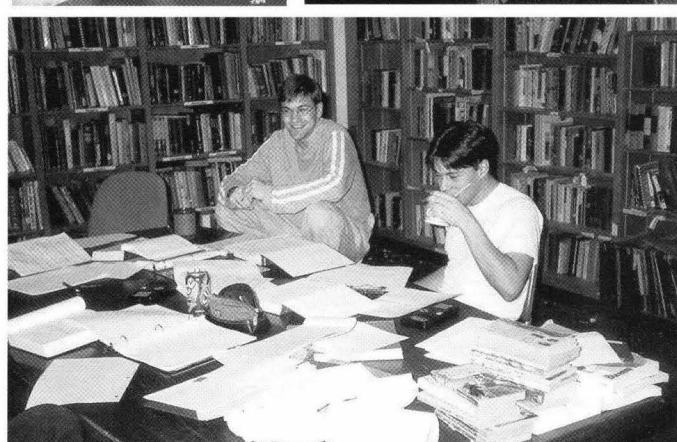

Lloyd hit a waiter with a roll one night at dinner, so got the Klimax float.

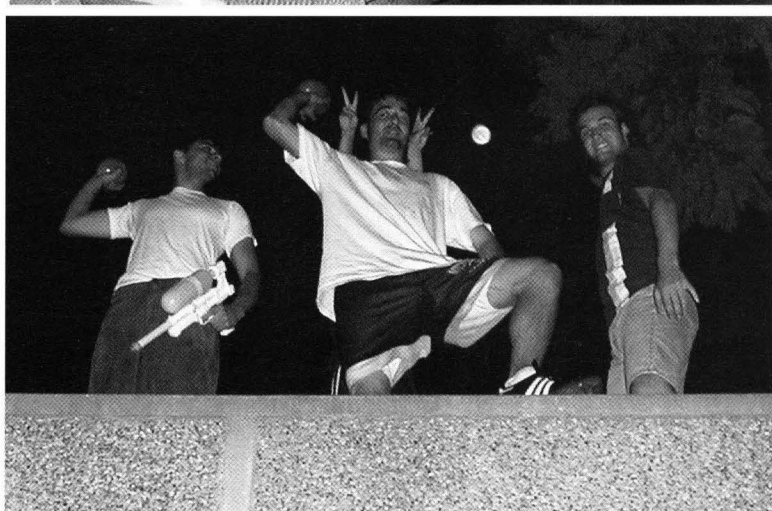

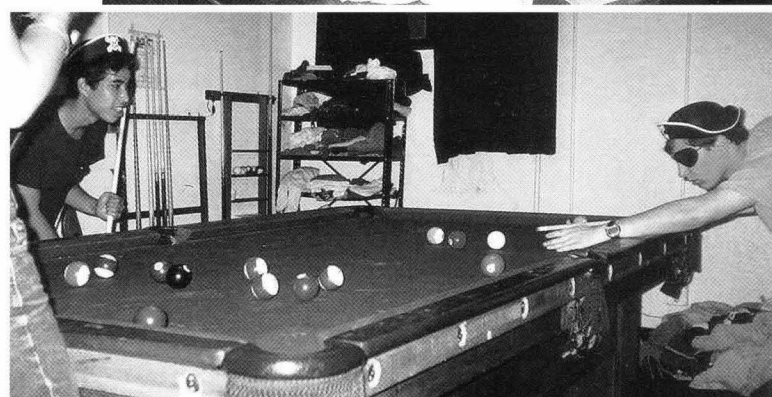

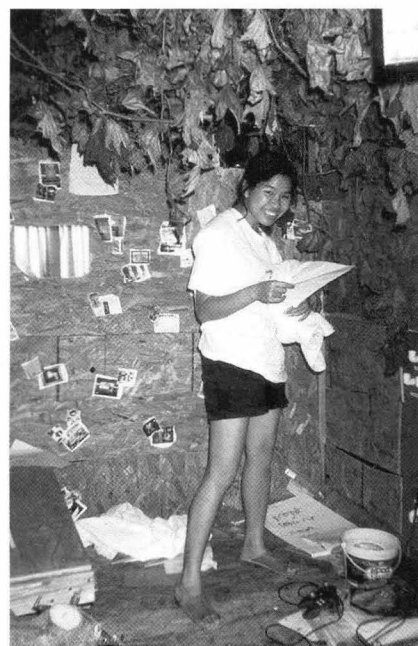

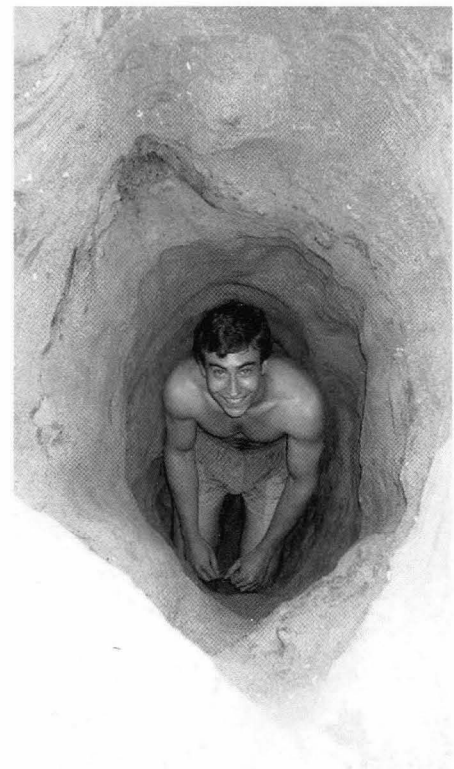

Lloyd House had spent so much time finding his personal style that he fell behind on his work. But no worry. He was on pass/fail. He just learned to balance problem sets with showering wars, cutthroat, interhouse, blow pong, excomm, hiking in Joshua Tree, and hanging out in Lower Crotch, which sometimes existed. Not often, though. At least those guys in housing got a chance to show off their bulging biceps by carrying the couches to the lounge once a week. And they assured Lloyd that the folding chairs were both comfortable and fire resistant.

Eventually Lloyd learned that he didn't always have to challenge himself. He learned to take breaks, to ditch classes, to enjoy Los Angeles and haul his ass to the beach. He played in pop bands and treehouses, dug holes, played pretend, built parties and relaxed.

Lloyd was glad to learn these things. He felt better and survived 'Tech..
THE END.

RICKETTS HOUSE

*I will tell you plainly all that you would like to know, not weaving riddles, but in simple language,
since it is right to speak openly to friends.*

--Aeschylus, "Prometheus Bound"

Prometheus didn't merely unleash fire upon the world — he disseminated knowledge. Why then are we surprised when threatened with censorship of our words by the very people who stripped the word "incendiary" from our vocabulary? In 1998, Ricketts House members criticized Caltech as being "an institution that is slowly degrading by denying its students the traditional freedoms accorded to them." But then, at least, the administrators believed they were making Caltech safe. Now they stir the ashes of our free inquiry and expression.

In the wake of recent events, it is strange that the administration chose to invite Ray Bradbury, author of anti-censorship novel Fahrenheit 451, to speak at Commencement. But even more ironic is that, in their vain attempts at suppressing harmless student eccentricities, these litigiously paranoid elder scientists (who are supposed to be role-models) are sending a very dangerous message: If something threatens your image or preconceived notions, cover it up at all costs! But what will happen when our fellow students follow this example in their professional careers?

CALTECH

Sports

Cross Country

The men's team closed the season with a fourth-place finish at the SCIAC Championships, the school's best showing since 1995. A trio of seniors brought home all-conference honors, led by first-team member Ian Shapiro, who took fifth place at the SCIAC Championships. Arjun Mendiratta (17th Place) and Adrian Seymour (18th place) earned second-team accolades. Caltech won the Cal Lutheran Invitational on Oct. 9, marking the program's first meet victory since 1995.

The women's team continued its improvement throughout the season. Sophomore Amy Kelly topped the team most of the year, shaving more than two minutes off her 5K time posted at the beginning of the season. Kelly took 32nd place at the SCIAC Championships while junior Paula Whitten finished 55th.

Soccer

The soccer team concluded the season on a positive note, earning a 2-1 victory in the season finale at La Verne. The win gave Caltech sole possession of seventh place in the final conference standings. The school had two players earn a spot on the All-SCIAC team for the first time since 1988. Dale Parkes became just the seventh player in school history to record three-straight all-conference seasons. Goalie Craig Vieregg ended the season with an average of 9.2 saves per game, good for 19th in the final NCAA rankings.

Volleyball

A young Caltech team showed incredible improvement as the season wore on, with all of the sweat finally paying off with a three-game win versus American Indian College on October 9th. In the season finale against Life Bible, sophomore Karen Lam set a team season-best with four blocks and tied the team season-high with 12 digs.

Water Polo

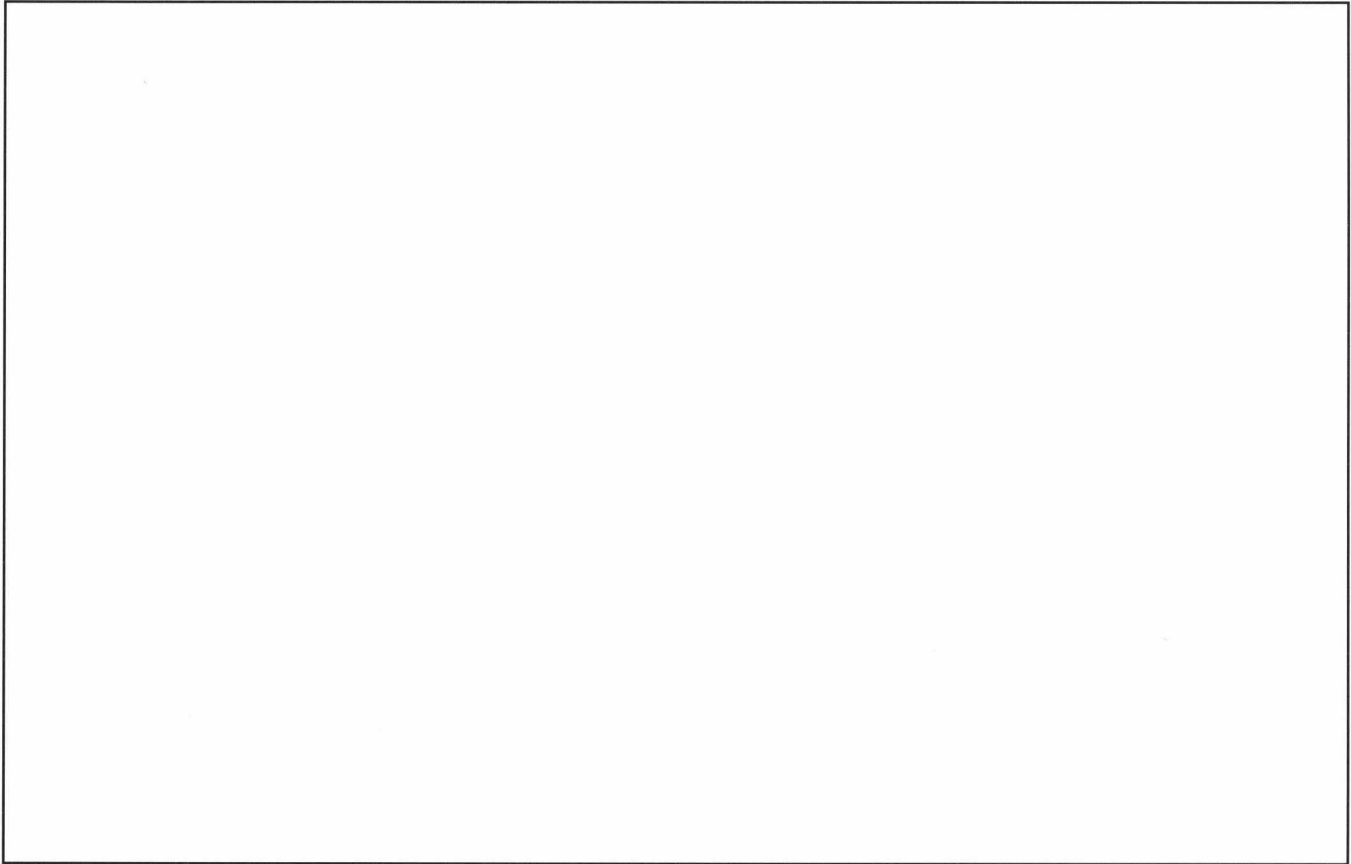

Caltech closed the season by hosting the 1999 SCIAC Championships at Braun Pool. The Beavers were led by second-team all-conference honoree Eagle Jones, who tied teammate Adam Thomason for 12th in SCIAC scoring, with 10 goals in regular season. Tom Daula had an excellent tournament, tallying 10 goals in the three matches, including back-to-back-to-back hat tricks. Sophomore goalkeeper Vladimir Federov finished second in the SCIAC with 65 saves during the conference regular season.

Women's Basketball

Under first-year head coach Rachel Madsen, the women's basketball team set a school record for wins a season, compiling a 5-14 record. Freshman center Julia Salas made headlines by finishing third in the NCAA with 15.4 rebounds per game. In fact, Salas was tops in the country in rebounding on January 14th. Sophomore guard Sarah Hunyadi finished second on the team behind Salas in scoring and rebounding at 9.9 ppg and 6.7 rpg while leading the team in steals with 45. Senior guard and team MVP Sueanne Lee led the team with 40 assists in 19 games.

Men's Basketball

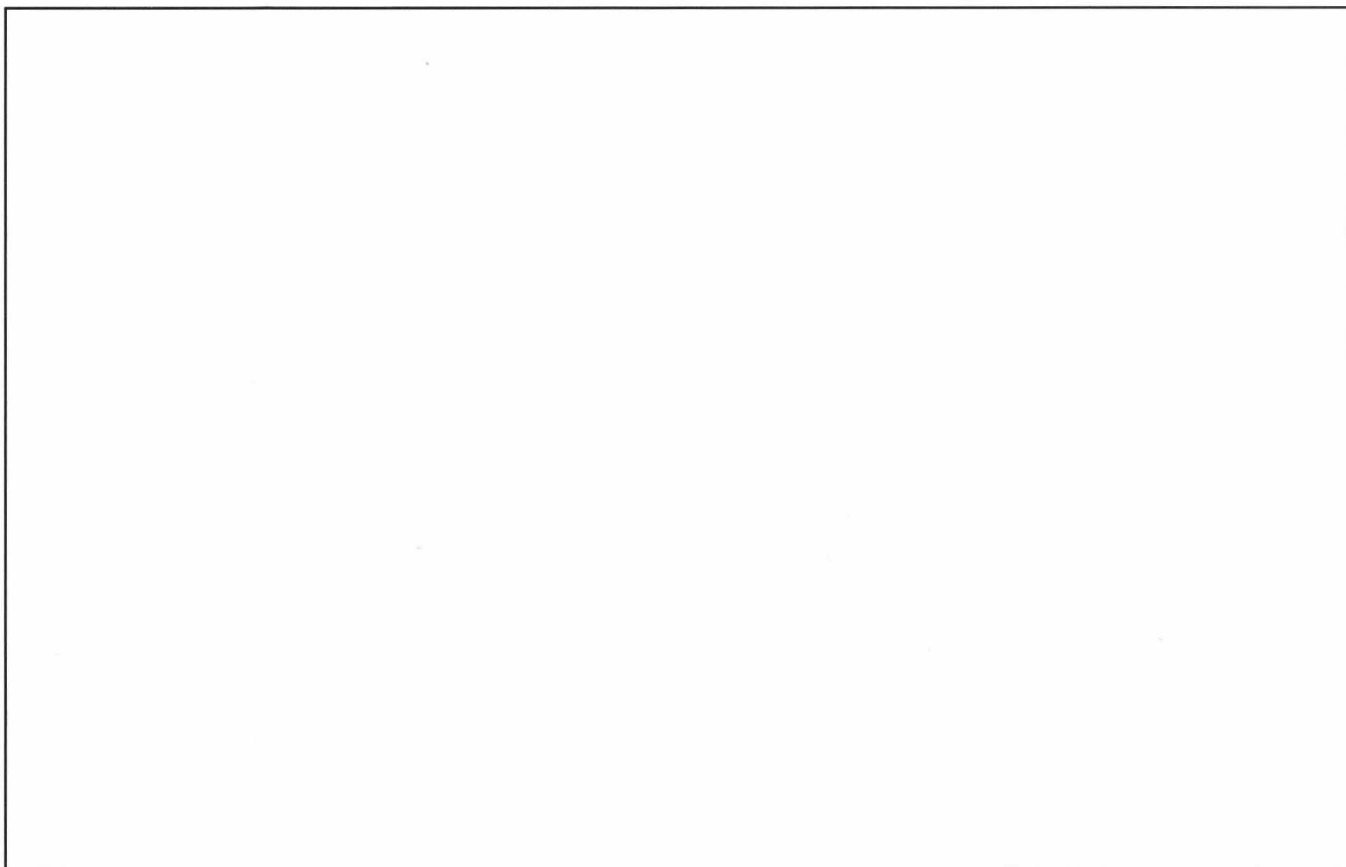

The men's basketball team battled hard throughout the nonconference season, finally breaking into the win column on January 8th with a 61-35 victory against American Indian College. Earlier that week, CIT battled to the end against Cooper Union (N.Y.) in a 53-50 defeat. Freshman Jonathan Bird showed promise for the future, leading the SCIAC in rebounding with 8.1 boards per conference contest. Overall, he took third in the league rebounding category. Senior Matt Musick displayed leadership throughout the season, finishing among the top 10 players in four statistical categories.

Fencing

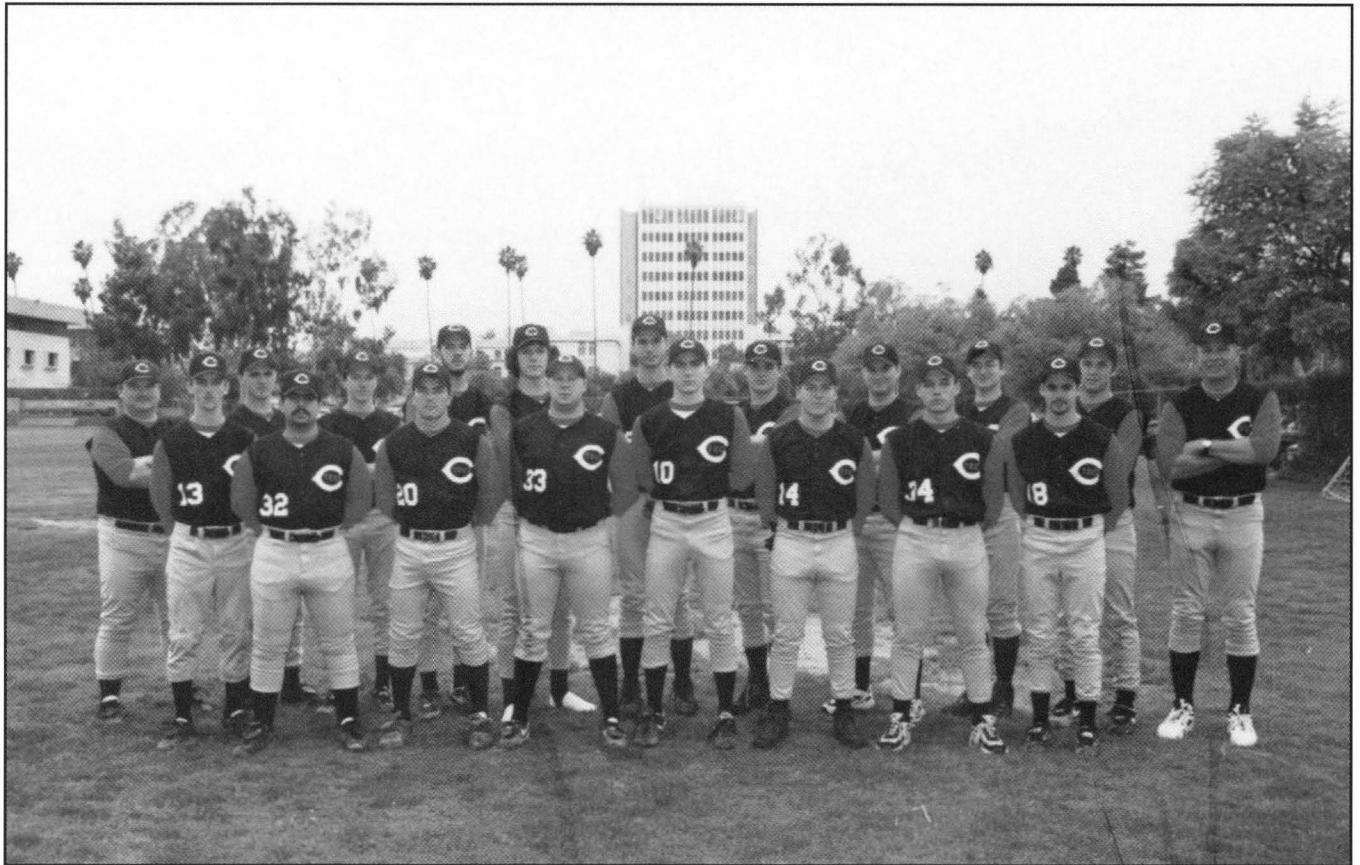

Competing in the six-team Intercollegiate Fencing Conference of Southern California, the men's fencing team took third place this season while the women finished fourth. The men were led by the conference runner-up sabre team and individual runner-up Cory Loomis. Sabre teammate Nathan Stein finished third in the conference. Zhao Huang (foil) and Tiago Wright (sabre) each finished fifth in the conference. For the women's team, Elisa Chan took eighth in the conference, but improved to take sixth place at NCAA Regionals. Minta Akin (sabre) finished ninth in the league.

Swimming and Diving

The men's and women's swimming teams each finished in sixth place in the SCIAC standings. The men's team earned Caltech Athletes of the Week honors in February after sweeping Occidental and Whittier in the final dual matches of the season. The women's team won five of 12 duals, including wins versus Mills College in January as well as at Whittier to close the regular season. Eagle Jones won the consolation final of the men's 400 IM at the SCIAC Championships while the top women's finish was posted by Kristen Cook, who took 11th place in the 1650 free.

Baseball

Senior Greg Fricke was named first-team All-SCIAC infielder, the first Caltech baseball player to earn first team honors since catcher Jim Hamrick in 1986. Fricke, who played infield, catcher, and even pitched in two games this year, led the SCIAC in triples this season and finished sixth in batting average. Freshman pitcher Andrew Conner opened his Caltech career with a three-hit complete game shutout of Simpson College on Jan. 29th.

Golf

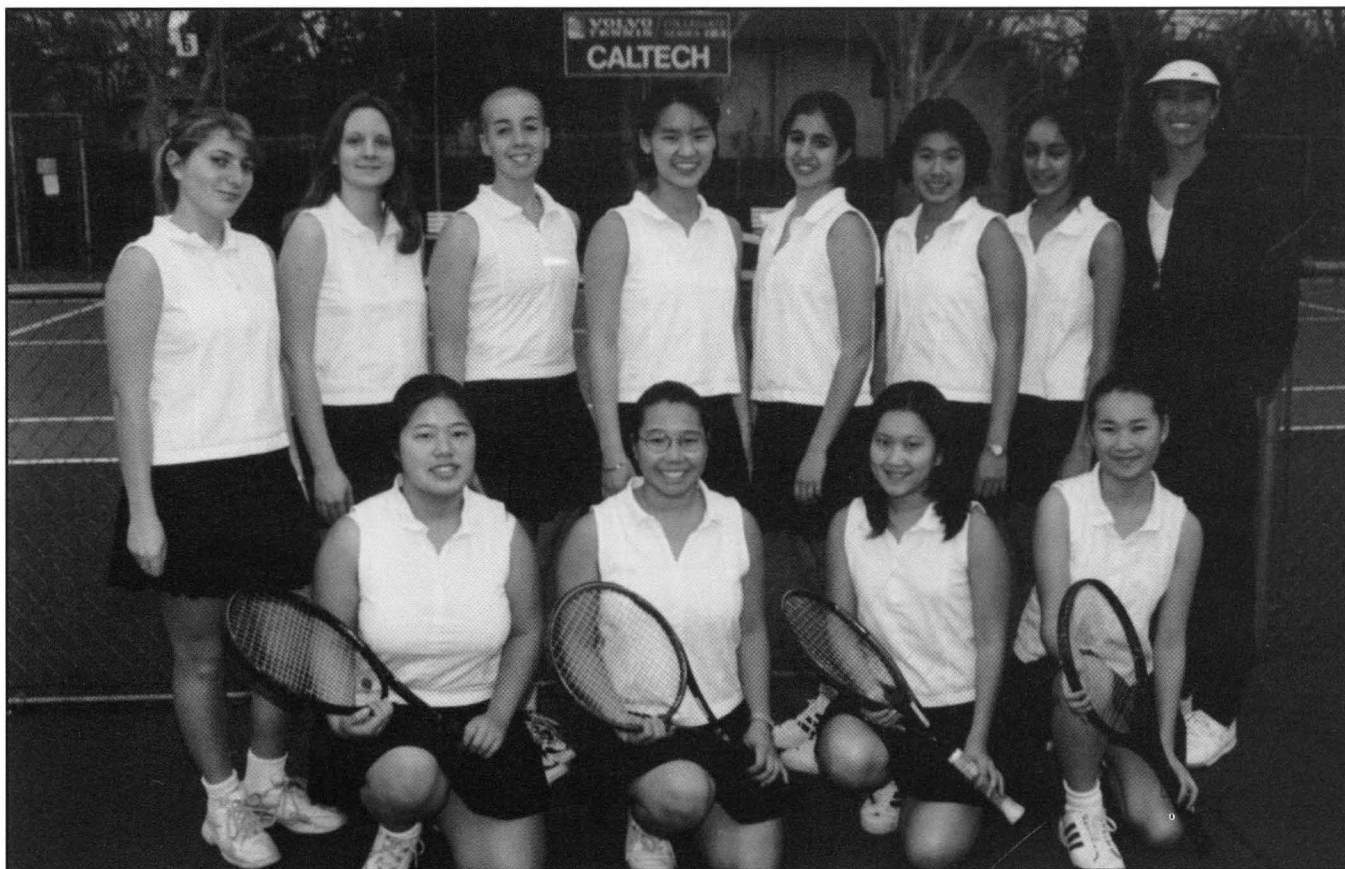

The golf team season highlight came on Friday, April 14th, when the Beavers took seventh place at the SCIAC 18 Hole Tournament in Oxnard with a team score of 377 in blustery conditions. Three days earlier, Caltech posted its best team score of the season with a 375 at the first SCIAC 18 Hole Tournament, held at Brookside Golf Course in Pasadena.

Men's Tennis

The men's tennis team finished fifth in the SCIAC, closing out the dual match season with a 7-0 win against La Verne and a 5-2 victory against Cal Lutheran at the SCIAC Championships. The win against CLU gave Caltech 10 dual wins for the season, tying the school record set in 1960. The highlight came on March 31 when the Beavers earned a 4-3 decision against Occidental. The win marked Caltech's first against Oxy since 1994 and only the second since 1975.

Women's Tennis

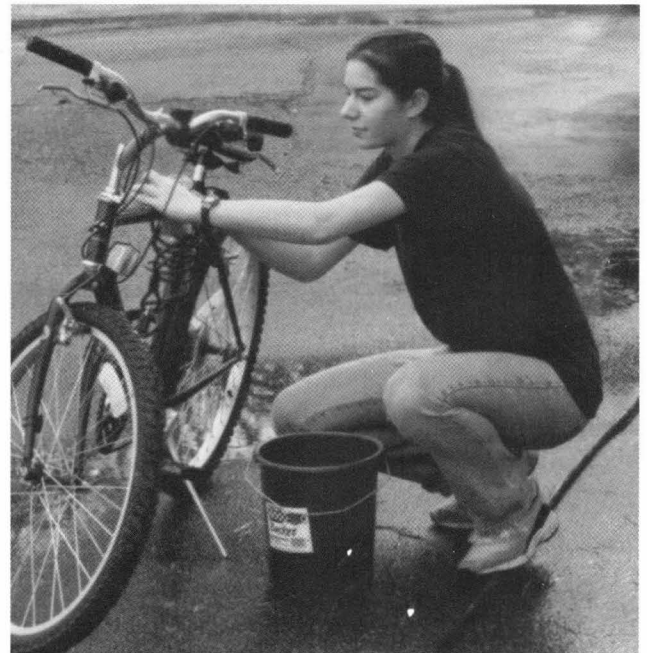

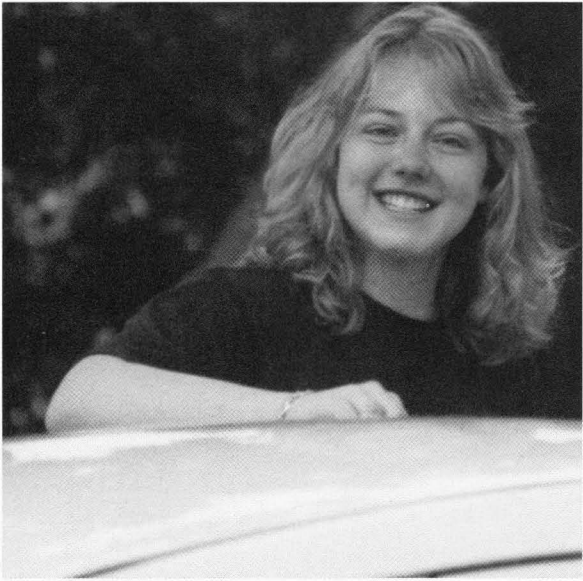

Women's tennis is the third Caltech squad to match or break the school standard for wins, joining the men's tennis and women's basketball teams. Like 1997, this year's women's tennis team also opened the year with four-straight wins, tying the squad's best start ever. Sophomore Nalini Colaco earned second-team All-SCIAC honors, only the third Caltech player ever to earn such distinction. Diane Wong was second-team as a senior in 1994 while Alexis Johnson was a three-time second team honoree in 1996-98.

Track and Field

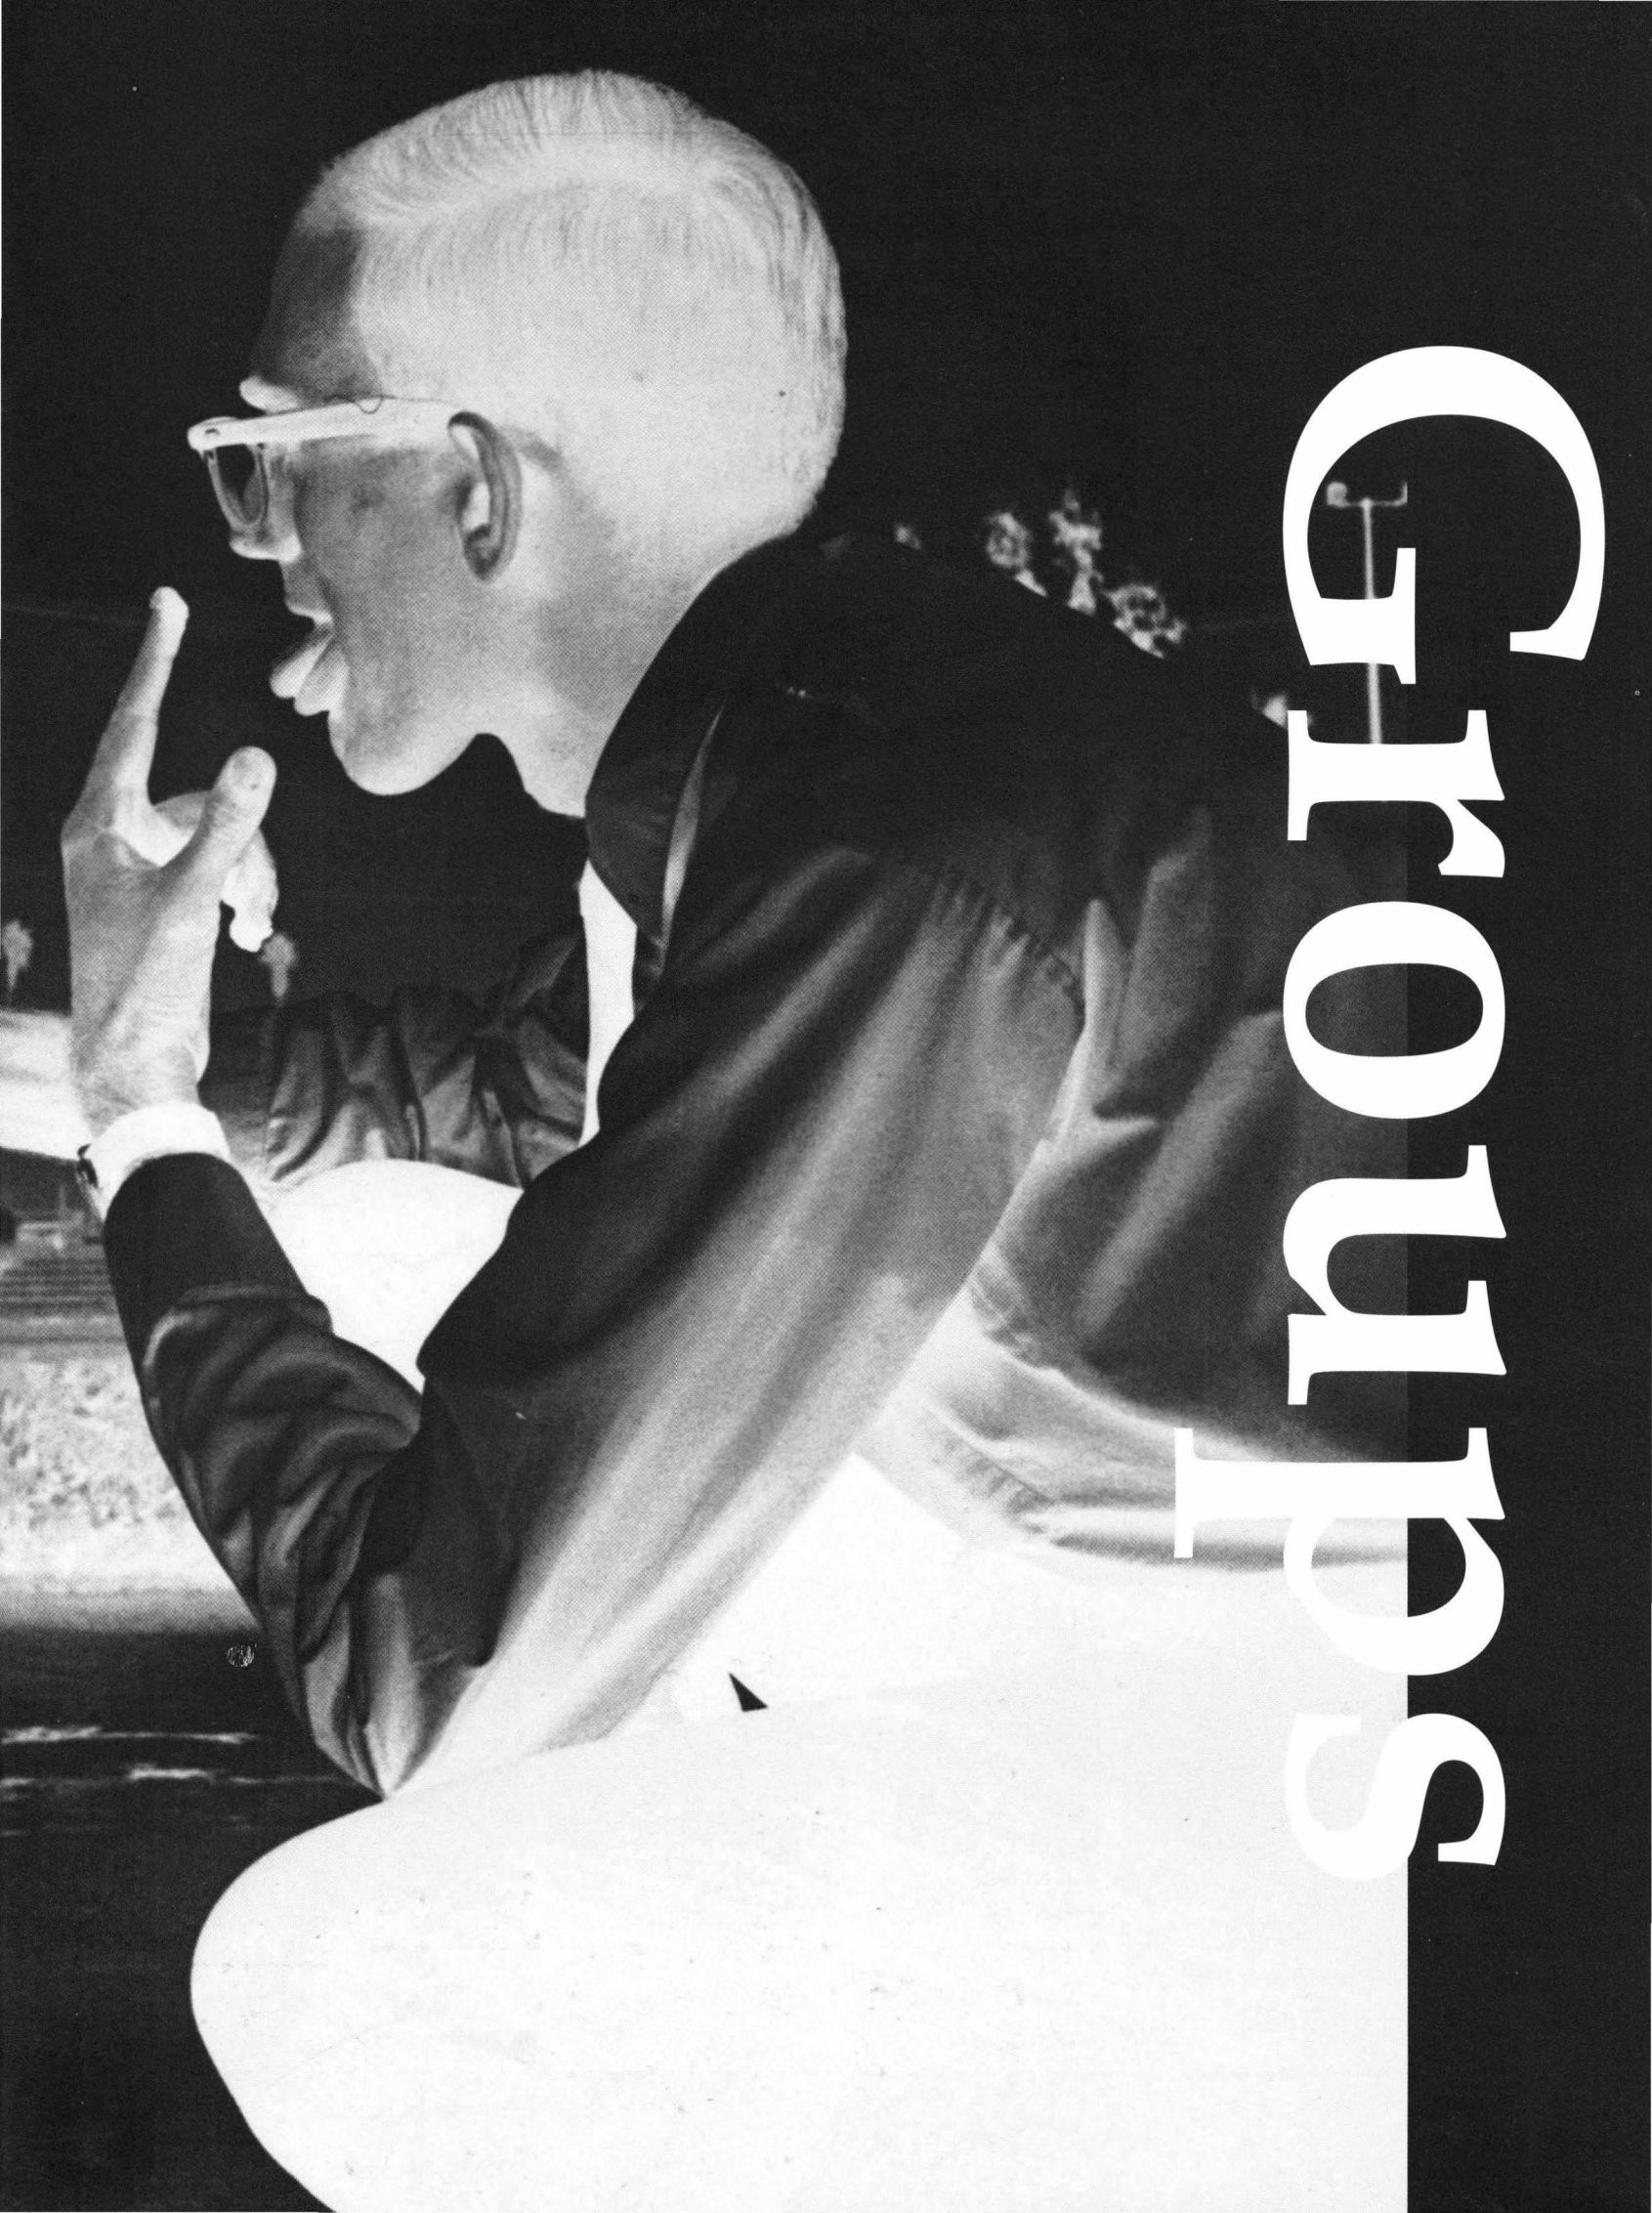

The Beavers Track and Field teams had many terrific individual efforts this season. On the men's side, Ian Shapiro earned All-SCIAC honors by finishing third in the 5000 meter run. Adrian Seymour took ninth in that event followed by Kenny Higa in 11th. Aaron Kuzin also was among Caltech's top athletes, taking 10th place in the discus throw, while Paul Thienthrapa continued to serve as the team's ironman, competing in five events at the meet. The men's 4x400 meter relay team earned All-SCIAC honors with its sixth-place finish in that event. For the women, Amy Duello notched two top finishes in the javelin and discus. Serena Eley and team MVP Amy Kelly also posted top times for Caltech.

the lead trumpet player with the Brian Setzer Orchestra came in and worked with the Swing Band. Joel Leech, former president of the National association of Jazz Educators worked with the Swing Band. John Daversa, an important voice in today's jazz world wrote a chart topper which the Thursday band premiered. Hornist James Thatcher, principal horn on over five hundred motion pictures (including "The Perfect Storm" and "The Patriot") performed with the Concert Band. and finally, Elvis and Godzilla slugged it out on the last concert of the year, Bandorama 2000.

This book has been long in coming. The road was fraught with perils, some from without and some from within. I appologize if material which you submitted does not appear; many pages died in an unfortuituos hard drive mishap.

Striving to do honor to the year, and accurately capture the web of Caltech life between the pages of a book was a constant battle. For victory, I owe many thanks to Hall Daily and Wren Montgomery. Without their invaluable advice and guidance, I might never have put this tar pit behind me.

For me, the substance of the book was the journey, for you the destination. Now, at least, a year shared in the twilight of the century and millenium is tangible. Some chapters closed, others made open. The memories of this time pass backward into the past. Yet they will always have some reality, pressed into the wet mud of a new world. Part of that impression is captured by this book. Now, I commend it to you and the ravages of time.
