Six lovely Candidates Vie For Homecoming Titles

by Jim Williamson

Techmen go to the polls today to choose this year's homecoming queen from a field of six candidates. To give them something to base their decision on, the candidates rotated through dinners and lounge visits-in the student houses on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The candidates were chosen by ASCIT President Dick Kirk and Publicity Manager Bill McClure, who went to dinner and decided to seat the campus at all local dining grounds (with the exception of Oxy).

Blaisdell Hall at Pomona contributed Diana Jackman, with soft blonde hair and one of the prettiest faces we've seen. She happens to be nineteen years old, a sophomore, and has blue eyes. When quizzed about non-scholastic interests, she listed such outdoor sports as swimming, skiing, horseback riding and ice-skating. She also likes people as evinced by her psychology major, with a view towards teaching, Indians maybe. She taught on a Navajo reservation last summer and mentioned a hope of going to Hawaii in the future.

From right across the hall in Pomona's Mult Dormitory came Carol McCoy, a tall (about 5'8") twenty-one year old senior with brown hair and gray-blue eyes. Our first impression of this statey girl was one of "respects", which was soon melted down from the austere type of look by a soft and sallility personage, Carol is from L.A., wants to be a law secretary, likes water-skating and collects records, among other hobbies.

When the "hops" trolled into Blaisdell Hall at Scripps while on their quest for beauty, they were pleasantly surprised by exceptionally well-dressed girls. Word of their coming had seeped through in advance and the girls had all turned out in their Sunday best. Out of the came two candidates, Suzanne Robin- son and Mary Anne Buelter. Mary Anne is a cute, pert freshman with a real bubbling personality, a born conversationalist of the best type. She has brown hair, brown eyes, likes the outdoors, to read, dance, collect records, and is undecided about her major. So many things are interesting, she says.

The Outside World

Success: A Case Study

Syria is in a state of war not because of what it contains, but rather because of where it is. No oil has been discovered there, and it is bordered by a number of countries, but no Western company has been willing to risk the capital involved in developing an oil field there. The situation is no less complicated than its strategic geopolitical position. However, the Soviet Union has sent its military actions into the country on the way to the Mediterranea.

America is only beginning to realize the significance of this strategic position, now that Russia's tanks rumble through Syrian streets under pro-Soviet commanders. Syria is the Russian satellite isolated from other Communist lands, and unfortunately it may not be the last. The conditions which led to Syria's new rule are similar to those in many other "underdeveloped" countries. Perhaps a consideration of what the Western countries did in the past will help us understand what may happen in these other countries, if not suggest ways that we can prevent it happening there.

Syrian hodge podge

Syria is made up of a hodgepodge of religious peoples. Those who have been punished by Leninist last year and for six games, but not consent to lose, even should she lose all her generals of-the-world matters.

Efron, Ford Holtzman, Mike Jones, John Lango, Hal Morris, the Army's Van.

And, probably never wants to win, perhaps more than any other team in the nation. The Beavers dare not expect the mighty Occidental that has not seen a win in six games, but rather the mighty Occidental that handed Santa Barbara her only defeat.

For this is the game that the Tiger will not lose, to even should she lose all others.

Although Tech enters tomorrow's game a slight favorite, the Bears dare not expect the stumbling Occidental that has not seen a win in six games, but rather the mighty Occidental that handed Santa Barbara her only defeat. For this is the game that the Tiger will not lose, to even should she lose all others.

Not since 1951 has Caltech won an SCC football game. Not since 1946 have the Beavers defeated the hated Occidental. And never has Bert LaBrucherie seen victory in the Rose Bowl.

If at that time a strong Throop Club spirit is available for conversion into a strong Throop spirit, the student body will be saved a difficult period of "helping along" during the last few years there have been a marked change in Throop. It is evidenced this year by stronger athletic teams, excellent Interhouse Dance decorations, and a greater participation by off-campus men in all Caltech activities. Most significant of all has been the advent of freshman initiation, which has had a significant effect on club unity.

The Bulpen
by Ford Holtman

Every now and again it behooves one to stop and consider why we do some of the weird things that we do. And so, acting in accordance with this profound and subtle truth, I sat down and tried to figure out, at least rationalize why I write these Bulpens. After a while I learned to my typewriter with an expression of fiendish and ecstatic joy on my face as I contemplated the heresy that I had concocted and was about to impose on the innocent and tender-minded Techman.

And if it is a real and legitimate heresy, it ought to be written to the Techman. We like to think of ourselves as open-minded and unbound by the petty mores of society, but we are not. Oh yes, many of us do indeed have a certain religious or political cynicism which has been kicked about for several centuries now. But this ill-defined cynicism is nothing more than the remnants of what were once legitimate doubts and heresies which have become vulgarized, vaguely felt and poorly understood.

When somebody reads an essay, he either likes it because it fits his present ideas, or he dislikes it because it does not do so, that is, if he is interested enough to comprehend even the words. Rarely is anybody's mind changed by an essay, and even more seldom when it concerns fundamental matters, unless the subject matter has been abstracted past any applicability, and then the essay becomes an opportunity for the reader and the author to get together and reinforce each other's cynicism or complacency.

Several Bulpens of past weeks illustrate this point nicely. When I write about the ASCIT Board of Directors, which practically nobody cares about except the directors themselves, I dare say most people think a pious thought about the twitches of politicians or newspaper columnists, and let it go at that, at any rate no non-board member has ever talked to me about it. But when I talked about football games, which is something everybody does or is coerced by social pressure to do, and when I tried to bring down to earth the pretty much accepted thought that "we in our society place too much emphasis on athletics" by daring to suggest that "we" really do mean "we," "us," "ourselves," and not "they," and by suggesting that the way to cure this over-emphasis of athletics is to deemphasize athletics by putting down to its more fundamental purposes and functions, then a hue and cry is raised from all quarters, and I am accused of being "antiathletic." By the same logic I must be antiart because I don't take my food with the stuff. Indeed, all I said was that athletics is something

Human Review

"I saw the best minds of my generation destroyed by madness starvation hysterical, naked, dragging themselves through the negro streets at dawn looking for an angry fox—"

"Crazy to be alive in such a strange world with the hand playing schmatta in the classic handbell—"

"The avant garde hair is not only ceased to exist, it's jumping all over the place—something's happening out there."

"San Francisco is getting too much like L. A. It's where neon goes when it dies."

"San Francisco is the only damn place in the world to live."

This is the noise of the West Coast, of San Francisco and L. A. Something's going on here. It is for example, the Calibre of London's 1917 group which produced Elliot, Pound, and Hamsun.

Well, I'm not certain about anything except the honesty and quality of Ferlinghetti's poetry. He reminds one of Whitman. Most of his work is clear and vigorous. Life magazine wrote a lot about him in its article on the "renaissance," but it appears that Life does not have the last word in its implied characterization of the entire West Coast renaissance.

In an article in the October Frontier magazine, we read, "To identify the Beat renaissance with a minority of jazz-happy poets is to distort the image beyond recognition and this is being done,—by the mass publications."

They seek publicity.

But it is clear that the poets themselves are seeking national publicity and one is tempted to ask why they are going against the tradition of a poetic elite. Why do they cater to a mass culture which is their own avowed enemy? Kerouac attempted to answer the question in an article in Nation, but he did not really succeed. The question demands a separate article because there are many answers given by both the writers and their critics.

In the meantime, any interest of local cats might try looking up Shelley Manne or Jimmy Giuffre here in L. A., who are working with the bebop and spectacular idea of reading poetry to jazz, which got its start and is "Drive into any Union Oil station in the West and you'll get a sample of what we call Minute Man Service.

"In 4½ minutes your oil, water, battery and tires are checked, your windshield and rear window cleaned, your gasoline tank filled, and your receipt handed you.

"But that's routine. It's the Minute Man's service beyond the call of duty that we keep getting fan mail about.

"For instance, the dealer in the small town who located a tenant for his customer's vacant house.

"Or the dealer in the suburb who baby-sat so his customer could go to an important dinner meeting.

"Or the dealer who fixed his customer's washing machine when she couldn't get help on a Sunday.

"Or the dealer who shopped for his customer's groceries and delivered them to her house...

"Exceptions to the rule? Not at all. Our files are full of letters recounting incidents like these.

"I take special pride in them because I'm one of the men at Union Oil whose job it is to train these dealers. We help them in every way we can to get the Union Oil idea: The only way to stay in business for yourself is to be in business for your customers."

"You're in business not for yourself, but for your customers."

No small part of our reputation—for having America's finest service station system is the quality of the men who operate them.

They are all individual business men. Like us, they compete for a living. That's why it's very likely that their service will continue to be as good as their gasoline.

Footballers Roll
Western, 46-19

Caltech's Beavers, led by the running of Dick Van Kirk and Don Stocking, scored twice in all but the second period Saturday to whip Cal Western of San Diego. The score was 49-19.

Living up to pregame expectations, the Beavers got off to a fast start by marching to the first score in seven plays, the touchdown coming on a 49-yard end sweep by quarterback Dick Van Kirk.

Gas Scores

Taking over on the Westerner's 43, the Beavers moved again to tally, with Don Stocking and Hal Gustafson carrying the ball. Fullback Gustafson powered into the end zone from the 7-yard line for the second Caltech score.

Late in the first period the Westerners recovered a Beaver fumble on the Caltech 14-yard line, and moved quickly to put six points on the scoreboard.

The Beavers scored again in the second period on an 8-yard carry by left half Stocking, and pushed over two more touchdowns in the third period: the first came on a 21-yard fever by Stocking, and the second on a 40-yard end sweep by right half Art Takado.

as well as Oxy's Wayne Sink and Pete Tunney. But the erratic Caltech defense may be the key to the game. The Beaver line has frequently shown itself capable of presenting an impenetrable wall, but momentary lapses have proven disastrous.

If the Caltech line can bottle Tunney and rush Sink right from the opening whistle, we will have a Homecoming well worth celebrating.

Soccermen Lose to UCLA, 2-0

In a return match the UCLA Bruins defeated the Beaver variety 20 at Westwood last Saturday.

The game, one of the strangest of this season, had no official referee, and substitutes were hurriedly drafted. The first half was overseen by a UCLA man who had formerly been a team member, while John Lavigno, the Caltech J. V. coach, refereed the second period.

Beavers Stronger

Although losing, the Beavers appeared stronger in this game than they did while winning in the first match of this year's Bruin-Beaver series. Both scores came in the second half.

Tech controlled the ball throughout the game, although they were unable to score. The ball was continually in Bruin territory. UCLA had the ball only seldom, but they tallied twice to make the game.

Hopes for a conference championship have dimmed, but a real chance still exists. The Beavers must beat powerful Pomona to gain a tie for first in the league standings. In their first match, the Sagehens tied the Beavers. UCLA has lost both to Caltech and Pomona.

Riverside Saturday

This Saturday the Beavers, still sporting a winning record, play the University of California at Riverside here. In their first meeting Tech downed the Haggarders 26.

Opinion

AS I SEE IT

by Dick Van Kirk

Meet your senior class president. His name is Lawrence Herbert Nelson, but we call him Sonny. He's six feet tall and he packs 150 pounds of bones and skin on his emaciated frame. If you want to give a two-word description of him try the words "skinny" and "gutty." I went to high school with him, roomed with him for a year, and played basketball with him for three years. I put the words about basketball in past tense because I think his collegiate basketball career is finished. But I wouldn't put money on that. Like I said, he's gutty.

Sonny was not born with his abilities as a basketball player. He acquired them through hours and hours of persistent practices, until he could "make all the moves" smoothly and efficiently. He played on our high school team in Phoenix for two years. Most of his junior year he sat on the bench, but his senior year he was a first string guard on a state championship team. He spent his senior year on the first string, and this bears it out. His freshman year at Caltech he decided that he could score points as well as play defense, and averaged 14 points a game that year.

Just before the start of his sophomore year he got together with his high school teammates and started a little scrimmage. In the middle of the game he came down with the wrong way on his right leg and severely damaged the knee joint. One of the best preventative for knee injuries is a strong set of muscles around the knee. Sonny almost didn't make guard on the team in his junior year he got together with his, high school teammates and started a little scrimmage. In the middle of the game he came down wrong way on his right leg and severely damaged the knee joint. One of the best preventative for knee injuries is a strong set of muscles around the knee. Sonny almost didn't make guard on the team.

so his leg muscles aren't too prominent. Anyway, he went to doctors and had the excess fluid drained from his knee, and even underwent surgery to remove some excess cartilage.

He missed the first half of basketball season that year while waiting for the knee to heal, then his desire overcome the fear of re-injury and he taped his leg together, played seven games, and scored 33 points a game until the inevitable happened. In his usual bustling manner he drove in for a layup, came down and stayed down. The knee was gone again and he was out for the season.

The next attempt was the rest, cure, and by the middle of basketball season last year he figured he was ready to come back. But all that was ready was the desire, and maybe the shooting eye. He moved slowly, favoring the knee, possibly because he wasn't sure it would hold up, or possibly because it had been so long in disuse that the leg and its muscles couldn't respond to the nerve impulses. So he decided to wait until this year, and rebuild the leg slowly. Sonny reported for practice this year eager to go full speed, and for a while he did.

One morning a few days ago, Sonny got out of bed and his brain told his knee to bend, but his knee didn't. It was locked, a piece of cartilage wedged in the joint. Last week he was on crutches, but this week he has discarded the crutches and limps unaided.

It appears that the knee isn't going to bother Sonny in his last appearance ana basketball floor this year. It isn't gone yet, but this week he has discarded the crutches and limps unaided. Sonny told me that he's been trying to shake his knee basketball, but it would be nicer for him to go through life without a limp. Who knows, maybe Sonny can accomplish both feats. Nobody feel like betting against it!
The annual Finance Drive of the Caltech Y will take place during the week of November 18, aiming for a goal of $1800, or roughly 8% of the total budget. One-hundred fifty solicitors, under the guidance of 18 solicitation chairs, will approach each individual graduate and undergraduate student and ask him for a small contribution towards this goal.

The contributions by the students will help partially to finance the Y’s extensive program of student recreation. Most of the money will be spent on the Leaders of America Program which has brought such famous men as Openheimer and Bunche to Caltech in the past.

Openings

The Board of Directors has established an office in the Board room in the basement of the Student Houses. This office will coordinate all ASCIT affairs.

All phone calls concerning ASCIT business should be directed to the Caltech switchboard, Ext. 670. If no answer, call Dick Kirk at 614.596, Mike Godfrey, SY. 3-7890, or Bill McClure, SY. 4398.

Their journey to Blacker was rewarded with a Courtyard magically transformed into a striking underwater scene (animated by a live mermaid.)

Leahy:

The year feels that it is important for each student to realize the benefits he receives through the Y and the necessity for him to give at least a small, entirely voluntary, contribution.

Other Sources

Besides the student body, the CIT Board of Trustees, alumni, friends, parents, endowments and other institutions and churches contribute toward the $21,500 total budget.

Y FILM SERIES

The Y Film Series will inaugurate its 1957-58 series with “Arsenic and Old Lace” this Sunday, 7:30 p.m., in Calvinson hall. Admission is 40 cents at the door. The film is a thoroughly delightful comedy of homicide and paranoia; two old ladies with a penchant for poison kill tired old men to sleep with their goopy administered potion slipped into elderberry wine. This is one of the funniest pictures the “Y” has yet presented. Don’t miss it.

Barn Dance Tops Sked

The Barn Dance for Blacker, Blacker, and Throop on Saturday, November 16, in Sunland, will be the highlight of this week’s social events.

ASCIT Holds Blood Drive

ASCIT’s annual Red Cross Blood Drive is being held today in Dalbany Hall Lounge. Facilities for the drive are provided by the Red Cross Bloodmobile and will be open until 4 p.m.

Any student over 18 years old is eligible to give blood. He automatically becomes a member of the Caltech blood bank upon his donation, and he, as well as members of his family, can then receive blood from the bank.

LOVELIES

Suzanne, also a freshman, is having far less trouble with her major. Having spent two summers in Mexico, and studied Spanish she has plans to go into the diplomatic service to that country. An eighteen year old from Los Alamos, N. M., she is 5’-8” tall, and likes swimming, riding, and “well, just about everything.”

Rounding out the collegian candidates, is Linda Duval, an eighteen-year-old freshman from Grace Scripps Hall, majoring in foreign languages. To complete the “essential” information, she is 5’-6”, lives in Burbank, likes swimming, hula and knitting, has blonde hair, and, as those who have seen her can readily enough, is prettier than the pictures.

A nursing student at the Queen of Angels Hospital, is our sixth candidate, Joanne L. Whane. At the tender (?) age of seventeen she has completed a year at Immaculate Heart. She has brown hair, brown eyes, is 5’-4” tall, likes progressive jazz, music in general, dancing, and psychiatry.

Y Finance Drive Sets $1800 As Annual Campaign Goal

The annual Finance Drive of the Caltech Y will take place during the week of November 18, aiming for a goal of $1800, or roughly 8% of the total budget. One-hundred fifty solicitors, under the guidance of 18 solicitation chairs, will approach each individual graduate and undergraduate student and ask him for a small contribution towards this goal.

The contributions by the students will help partially to finance the Y’s extensive program of student recreation. Most of the money will be spent on the Leaders of America Program which has brought such famous men as Openheimer and Bunche to Caltech in the past.

Speakers

Lunch clubs, forums and discussion groups, introducing about 200 new speakers during the year, take up another large part of the Y’s budget. Services, such as the free telephone, and work at the Lost and Found Service and the Used Books Service also take a large share of the funds.
